PAUL DOUMER ELECTED PRESIDENT OF FRANCE

Spain, After Two Days Riots, Nearing Normalcy

MARTIAL LAW, HOWEVER, STILL FIRMLY IMPOSED

CARDINAL SEGURA, PRIMATE OF SPAIN, LEAVES COUNTRY, ENTERING PORTUGAL

ARMY PARADES, TO GIVE EVIDENCE THERE IS NO DISAFFECTION AMONG TROOPS
By WILLIAM H. LANDER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Madrid, May 13.—Spain, after two days of rioting and burning of churches and religious institutions, began to return to normal today, with Valencia the only city not in control.

Martial law was imposed firmly in the leading cities.

It was disclosed that Cardinal Segura, primate of Spain, whose recent pastoral letter on the Catholic attitude towards the republic, was held partly responsible for the rioting, had left Spain and entered Portugal. He was accompanied by his mother and sister and crossed the frontier at Caceres, the information said.

Miguel Maura, minister of the interior, said today that in view of malicious rumors about disaffection in the army, he had ordered a strong display of troops in the streets of Madrid "to make a graphic and visual denial" of the rumors and serve warning on anyone wishing to create disorder that the army was ready to repress any disturbance.

Huelva, Spain, May 13.—The Franciscan monks abandoned their historic monastery of Larabida today and the republican flag was hoisted on it.

Madrid, May 13.—Frightened inhabitants of nearly a score of cities and towns fled into the countryside today, terrorized by the continued violence of anti-religious mobs whose fanatical vandalism martial law had failed to check.

All work stopped in Valencia as rioting mobs renewed their depredations. Martial law was in force, but failed to check the riots. Troops and civil guards were placed at strategic positions throughout the city.

Mobs destroyed the Escapulians' monastery, the church of the Jesuits' convent, and four other religious buildings in Valencia. The Carmelite and Cistercian convents were set afire.

Three persons were killed and five wounded at Cordova when civil guards repulsed an attack by a mob on the San Cayetano church. Two of the wounded were guardsmen. Martial law prevailed, but numbers of the frightened populace fled.

In the south, the exodus of panic-stricken refugees was particularly great. Hundreds of them prominent persons, sought to escape over the border to Gibraltar.

Virtually the entire coast of Valencia as far as Gibraltar, as well as most of southern Spain were under martial law.

Strict enforcement of martial law maintained order in Madrid. Army engineers with machine guns and armored cars helped keep order. Traffic was paralyzed.

The extension of martial law to no fewer than 11 cities failed to quell the uprisings. At Alicante, where several religious buildings already had been burned, violence and burning broke out again. Two convents were burned.

Violence at Valencia included destruction of the church of the Jesuits' convent, the Escapulians' monastery and four other religious buildings.

At Cartagena, martial law was proclaimed. Because of unrest among the city's 30,000 unemployed. Convents and monasteries were evacuated. The devout prayed in the streets, fearing divine retribution.

Robbers entered the royal palace at Santander during disturbances and removed three portraits valued at 50,000 pesetas.

The eleven cities under martial law were: Madrid, Malaga, Murcia, Seville, Valencia, Cadiz, Granada, Alicante, Cartagena, Cordova and Alinae.

Bishops at Valencia, Bilbao, Almeria and other towns ordered the monasteries and convents evacuated. But little harm to priests, monks or nuns has been reported.

Estimates of religious buildings damaged in the last three days indicated upwards of 30 had been partly or completely burned and sacked. The damage was estimated at more than $4,000,000 throughout Spain.

The estimates included: Malaga, newspaper plant, bishop's palace, four convents, five churches and one convent burned; Murcia, two convents burned; Seville, one convent and one church burned at each place; Granada, one convent damaged by a bomb; Alicante, seven religious institutions burned; Cordova, various convents attacked.

The anti-religious uprisings were due chiefly to the reaction of republican extremists against the monarchial campaign during the last fortnight, the authorities indicated. The monarchial campaign, formed last month,

CLAIMS COFFEE BEFORE RETIRING INDUCES SLEEP

San Quentin, Calif., May 13.—(U.P.)—Dr. Leo L. Stanley, San Quentin prison physician, announced today he had discovered through a series of scientific tests on convicts that contrary to general opinion, people sleep better if they drink coffee before retiring.

Dr. Stanley's subjects for the experiments were three murderers, three robbers and a kidnaper. He used apparatus of his own invention to register the men's movements while they slept.

For three weeks, the men were allowed nothing to drink before they went to bed. During this time they established a "normal" average of 10.42 movements each hour.

Then for nine nights, the convicts each drank a cup of hot water before retiring. Their movements per hour dropped to 8.43. For the next five nights they were given coffee before they slept. The movements dropped to 8.07 per hour.

HUGE OIL STORAGE TANK IN OKLAHOMA CITY EXPLODES

MENACES THICKLY POPULATED DISTRICT AND OIL WELLS WITH FIRE

HOME BURNED, FIRE SPREADS TO 3 OTHER TANKS IN THE VICINITY

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 13.—(U.P.)—A huge oil storage tank in the heart of the capital hill residential section exploded today, menacing a thickly populated district and oil wells with fire.

An hour after the blast the fire had burned a home and had spread to three other tanks in the storage tank battery on the Phillips Petroleum Company's McBeth lease.

The south part of Oklahoma City was rocked by the blast which ripped the top off a 25,000 barrel tank and hurled it 100 feet.

At 9 A. M., less than an hour after the first blast, firemen had brought the flames under control. Oil in the great vats continued to burn, however, and large billows of black smoke rose over the city.

Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Several shops and supply houses were damaged by smoke and water. The flames spread to a paint store. Firemen were hampered in fighting the flames because of the smoke and constant exploding of paint drums.

Wheeler school was only eight blocks from the tanks. The blast occurred as the children were gathered for classes.

U. S. STEEL COMMON EQUALS 1924 LOW

ENTIRE MARKET AT NEW YORK DOWN FRACTIONS TO OVER TWO POINTS

By ELMER C. WALZER
(United Press Financial Editor)

New York, May 13.—United States Steel common stock equaled its low since 1924 in the early trading on the stock exchange today and the entire market was down fractions to more than two points.

Steel opened at 110 1/2 off 1/2 point and then broke to 109 3/4, the low level made a week ago. New lows for several years were made by New York Central at 91 5/8 off 1 3/4, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western at 59 off 1 1/4, and American Can at 104 3/8 off 1 3/4.

Heavy losers included Atchafalaya 16 1/2 off 2; American Telephone 181 off 1 1/4; Consolidated Gas 94 3/8 off 1 5/8; Allied Chemical 119 off 2.

Very few issues were up at the opening or in the early trading. Among these exceptions were Western Union at 110 1/2 up 1/4; Bethlehem Steel 45 1/4 up 1/4; United Gas Improvement at 30 5/8 up 1/8.

culminated in general disapproval of the pastoral letter issued by the primate of Spain, Cardinal Segura, last week.

Cardinal Segura urged that all Catholics co-operate in the forthcoming constitutional assembly elections to "defend our interests."

The power of Catholic religious orders in Spain in the last 10 years had created hostility among the anti-clerical and liberal factions. Extremists held responsible for the present series of riots and burnings have succeeded, however, it was admitted, in inciting bonafide republicans to participate in the disorders.

Buhl High School Principal Gets 65 of 100 Students Strikers to Return to Their Studies

SCHOLARS VOICED OBJECTION TO HIS REMOVAL

OAS PLEADS HE DOES NOT WISH SCHOLARS TO JEOPARDIZE SEMESTER CREDITS

PRINCIPAL REMOVED BY BOARD IN FAVOR OF A MARRIED MAN

Buhl, Minn., May 13.—(U.P.)—O. J. Oas, Buhl high school principal, sought today to convince more than 100 student strikers to return to classes, despite the fact they are protesting his removal as head of the school by the board of education in favor of a married man.

Oas had succeeded today in getting 65 of the students who walked out of classes Tuesday to return. Pleading that although he appreciated their efforts in his behalf, he did not want the students to jeopardize their semester's credits by remaining away from classes, Oas obtained the return of a third of the strikers.

The remainder of the students sought to obtain another hearing with the board of education for a student committee composed of Emanuel Goulet, Edward Beaulac, Sara Helman and Yoso Hydukovich. At a previous hearing the board refused to give the students any answer as to why Oas and three other instructors had been released at the expiration of the present semester.

Oas and five other unmarried instructors were notified last week that after the present school term, they would be released in favor of married instructors. They were informed that their work was considered satisfactory.

Nearly 300 students left their classes Tuesday and met in the school yard. More than 160 chose to go on strike following the meeting.

The students voted to protest the removal of Oas, Carol Butler, Herbert Holmes and Thomas Hovie. They did not protest the failure to rehire Miss Gladys Wellman and Miss Annette Gillespie. Oas has been principal of Buhl high school almost since its beginning.

M. H. Montgomery, school director, said the release of the instructors was part of an economy move to meet a $6,000 reduction in the school budget for the 1931-32 term. Unmarried members of the faculty were removed from the payroll as better able to stand the cut than married instructors, he said.

Students pointed out in rebuttal that the notice of release to the instructors said that six married instructors would be hired to replace the five single members of the faculty.

"I want the students to return to classes," Oas said today. "If they want to protest the board's action, they should do it by deputations."

"On some of the salaries paid I do not see how married men could support a family."

CLEVER GANGSTER HIDEAWAY FOUND

USED AS MEETING PLACE AND LOOT CACHE IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., May 13.—(U.P.)—Six men were under arrest today after a police raid on what was said to be one of the most cleverly constructed gangster hideaways ever discovered in Minneapolis.

Police believed the hideaway was used as a meeting place for criminals and a place to hide their loot. An exit over the roof and a secret room were features of the establishment, which was located in an apartment house.

Four rooms on the second floor of the building were believed to have served as the gangsters' meeting place. A trap door in the ceiling led to a concealed room above.

A rope and a sack was part of the equipment, evidently for use in quickly getting guns or other evidence into the upper room in case of a police raid.

A door from the upper room led to the roof of the building. The building was connected with another apartment house next door by planks. Four detectives were required to make the raid, two of them standing guard on the roof of the building next door and the others entering the suspected building.

112 PERSONS ARE INDICTED, 46 RING LEADERS ARRESTED

Moscow, May 13.—(U.P.)—One hundred and twelve persons were indicted today, and 46 ring-leaders were arrested, on charges of being implicated in an extensive conspiratorial organization headed by a former nobleman, now a time-keeper, named Ivanov.

They were charged with sabotage costing millions of rubles through misdirecting railroad consignments, especially of machinery and motor parts.

4 HI-JACKERS IN BOLD ATTEMPT TO ROB LIQUOR STORE

EL SALVADOR LEGATION BEARS BRUNT OF THEIR ATTACK

DON CARLOS LEIVA, CHARGE OF THE LEGATION, SEVERELY BEATEN

Washington, May 13.—(U.P.)—Four hi-jackers today made a bold attempt to rob the El Salvador legation of its store of liquor, severely beat Don Carlos Leiva, charge of the legation, and escaped in an automobile.

The brazen attempt to remove legal liquor stores from foreign property in the capital is the first of its kind on record. Leiva was taken to emergency hospital with a fractured skull as a result of being struck repeatedly with a claw hammer by the bandits.

Entering the legation, the charge saw four men descending steps which led to the floor on which the liquor locker was located. All of them, he said, were armed, and warned him to leave the premises.

Disregarding their threats, he leaped upon them, at the same time drawing a revolver and firing two shots. The shots frightened the thugs who fled after brutally pummeling the diplomat.

WAGE REDUCTIONS CAUSE WALK-OUT

1,800 EMPLOYEES OF THE EMPIRE STEEL CORPORATION OUT AT MANSFIELD, O.

Mansfield, Ohio, May 13.—(U.P.)—Wage reductions totaling 30 per cent in one year were declared responsible for the walk-out of 1,800 employees of the Empire Steel Corporation here today as strike leaders prepared a list of demands to submit to corporation officials.

Less than 12 hours after their unexpected walkout, the strikers had organized to combat repeated wage reductions in this section. They plan to unionize steel workers at the plant. Empire steel is an open shop corporation.

Although the strike, which started last night when corporation officials announced a 15 per cent wage cut, was conducted in an orderly manner, it was reported today that the corporation had posted guards on the plant's property. Strikers were warned against violence at a huge mass meeting immediately following the walk-out.

Honor Mothers at Tomb

Mothers of the hero dead of the World War were honored at impressive ceremonies in Arlington Cemetery, Washington, D. C., on Mothers' Day. Mrs. Virgil McClure, National President of the American War Mothers, is shown placing a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in the National Cemetery.

SEEKING COURT ACTION TO NULLIFY FIVE INDICTMENTS

WERE RETURNED AGAINST MINNEAPOLIS POLICEMEN BY SPECIAL GRAND JURY

CHARGED THEY WERE MADE AFTER REGULAR SESSION OF JURY ENDED

Minneapolis, Minn., May 13.—(U.P.)—A court action to nullify five indictments returned against policemen by the famous special grand jury, which has just adjourned after six busy weeks, was under way today in Minneapolis.

Attacks on the legality of the indictments was made from several angles. The chief objection to them, however, was that they were returned after the regular session of the jury had ended.

The court action was started by attorneys for Joseph Lehmyer, night captain of detectives who was indicted on charges of wilful neglect of duty and accepting a gratuity.

Other indicted policemen are Sergeant Matt Neary, Detective Fred Schroeder, Patrolman William Mealy and E. F. Gustafson, suspended head of the morals squad.

Merrill Hutchinson, foreman of the grand jury, and Dan Harding, special investigator, meanwhile, were awaiting action on warrants against them charging subornation of perjury.

Harold Brevik, secretary to Mayor W. F. Kunze, charged in the warrants that Hutchinson and Harding attempted to "frame" him and several policemen on charges of collecting protection money from vice resorts.

They appeared in district court yesterday, but county prosecutors refused to press the charges against them, saying they knew nothing of the warrants. Brevik said today he will ask the state's attorney to appoint a special prosecutor.

BLACKMER'S FINE UP TO SUPREME COURT

Washington, May 13.—(U.P.)—Harry M. Blackmer, oil man now in France, whose sentence to pay a fine of $60,000 for contempt of court growing out of the federal oil investigation recently was upheld by the District of Columbia appellate court, today was granted a stay of mandate pending appeal to the supreme court.

Under the stay the fine will not be collected until the supreme court has passed upon the case.

No mention was made during today's proceedings of the case of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, whose sentence of a year in prison and fine of $100,000 was upheld at the same time the court ruled on Blackmer's case. Fall has said he would not appeal.

NAUTILUS PASSES SUBMERGENCE TEST

New London, Conn., May 13.—(U.P.)—The submarine Nautilus in which two dozen explorers hope to reach the North Pole this summer, passed successfully today its first submergence test since it was rebuilt for the under-ice voyage.

The long, slender craft went down three times in the Thames river off Bailey's Point, where the water is about 50 feet deep. Motors and pumps were tested.

After the tests, Capt. Sloan Danehower, commander, pronounced "everything all fine."

BIG BUSINESS SETS A NEW RECORD FOR WORLD-WIDE DEAL

New York, May 13.—(U.P.)—Big business, moving with machine-like precision, has set a new record for world-wide transactions. Comptroller Charles W. Berry offered $32,000,000 worth of New York city bonds for sale. A short time later they were sold to a banking syndicate headed by the National City company, at the exceptionally low rate of interest of 2.997 per cent.

Public offering of the bonds was made immediately and orders began to pour in from throughout the United States and many foreign countries. Ten minutes after the books were opened, resale of the bonds was completed, making the transaction the fastest and most successful of its kind in the memory of municipal bond specialists.

HEAR RUMORS OF DISAFFECTION AGAINST HOOVER

PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICAN BLOC INTENSIFIES THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST PRESIDENT

AIMS TO PREVENT RENOMINATION OF EXECUTIVE TO THE OFFICE

Washington, May 13.—(U.P.)—Rumors of disaffection against President Hoover were current today as the progressive republican bloc intensified its campaign to prevent renomination of the president.

Senator Brookhart, republican, of Iowa, said he had received many letters endorsing his recent proposal for a progressive candidate instead of Mr. Hoover. He said such letters had come from eastern as well as western states, and included in his list "every eastern state except New Jersey."

Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, criticized the president last night in a radio speech for refusing to permit use of federal funds to assist the 6,000,000 unemployed. He declared himself in favor of tariff revision, and also attacked the administration's farm relief program. He demanded increased taxes on the rich and on estates. In each of his major theses he took a position directly opposed to Hoover policies.

Another and more prominent western republican leader said he could not recall a time when politics occupied such a large share of conversation so long before election. The north-west, he said, "is just milling around like a herd of cattle."

He quoted a correspondent who said Minnesota was "anti-republican but not yet democratic."

At the same time the democratic strategists were busy getting under way a "harmony drive" to restore to the fold those sections of the democratic south which became disaffected in 1928. Incidental to this drive was the purpose of assuring the south that the northern democrats had no desire to force their anti-prohibition views on their prohibitionist colleagues.

In line with this drive, Jouett Shouse, executive chairman of the democratic national committee, last night addressed, by invitation, the Texas legislature. This, in view of the fact that Texas went for Hoover in the last presidential election, was considered significant of a possible reversal of opinion.

Shouse, a Rankin appointee, assured the legislators that while he personally approved Chairman Rankin's "home-rule" plan of prohibition reform, no attempt was being made or would be made to force the south to accept an anti-prohibition platform. All he asked was a frank expression.

He devoted most of his speech to criticism of the administration's course during the economic depression, thus to some extent subordinating the liquor issue.

GRAF ZEPPELIN TO MAKE SIX ATLANTIC CROSSINGS THIS YEAR

New York, May 13.—(U.P.)—The giant dirigible Graf Zeppelin, with seven Atlantic crossings, including a flight around the world, already to her credit, is expected to make six similar trips this summer.

The air voyages are planned on a fast plane-airship schedule between Berlin and South America, Martin Wronsky, director of the Luftthansa, the German airways system, revealed before departing for home. He was aboard the Bremen today found for Germany.

He said his company also contemplates an experimental mail schedule of five days, to be established between the capitals of Europe and principal cities in the western hemisphere.

EXECUTIVE-ELECT WAS PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE

AT 74, HE BECOMES THE OLDEST PRESIDENT EVER TO HOLD OFFICE IN REPUBLIC

ELECTION ON SECOND BALLOT ASSURED WHEN BRIAND ANNOUNCED WITHDRAWAL

Versailles, France, May 13.—(U.P.)—Paul Doumer, president of the senate, was elected thirteenth president of France by parliament, meeting as a national assembly in the palace here today.

Doumer, at 74, becomes the oldest president ever to hold office in France. His election on the second ballot was assured when Aristide Briand, foreign minister and his principal rival, announced his withdrawal.

On the first ballot, Doumer led with 442 votes to 401 for Briand.

Versailles, May 13.—(U.P.)—Aristide Briand, foreign minister, acting in concert with the cabinet, announced today that he was withdrawing his candidacy for president of the republic.

BI RALPH HEINZEN
Versailles, France, May 13.—The senate and chamber of France, sitting as a national assembly, voted today for the thirteenth president of the republic.

The first ballot disclosed a close contest between Aristide Briand, the famous foreign minister, and Paul Doumer, president of the senate. Doumer had 442 votes and Briand 401. Neither had a clear majority, as required by the constitution, and a second ballot was necessary.

The ancient hall of the palace of the Bourbon kings, where the first national assembly created the republic in 1791, was the scene of wild excitement as the senators and deputies voted. Briand's enemies, seeking to prevent a crowning confirmation of his pacific foreign policies, strove mightily to elect Doumer.

The members of parliament who crowded the floor milled in excitement and acted like schoolboys. The communists shouted for the Soviet and the socialists howled in derision.

Leon Blum, the socialist, was booed. General Saint Just was greeted with resounding "boom-booms."

"Go to Morocco," was shouted at Painleve.

Premier Pierre Laval and Andre Tardieu were cheered.

The official number voting on the first ballot was 902, making an absolute majority, 452.

A corrected official result of the first ballot showed:

Doumer, 442; Briand, 401; Jean Kennesey, 14.

The second ballot was started at once.

THINK INSANE MAN MAY HAVE BEEN KIDNAPER TOO

San Diego, Calif., May 13.—(U.P.)—Ashur Williams, 45, who escaped from an Ohio insane asylum, today was taken to the neighborhood where Virginia Brooks lived in an effort to identify him as the kidnaper and slayer of the 11-year-old school girl.

Williams, latest suspect in the first of four slayings to shock San Diego during the past four months, was to face the parents of the victim and neighbors who knew her.

It was said by investigators that Williams, arrested in Los Angeles on a charge of mistreating a small girl, lived in San Diego about the time Virginia disappeared last February and was seen here a month later when the child's body was discovered on Camp Kearney mesa.

Cannons Roar Salute to German Ambassador

St. Paul, May 13.—(U.P.)—Nineteen cannons at the Fort Snelling military reservation roared a salute today to Dr. Friedrich Wilhelm von Prittwitz, German ambassador to the United States.

The ambassador was a guest of St. Paul for the day. He also will visit several other Minnesota towns, including St. Cloud.

Visits with Gov. Floyd B. Olson and Mayor Gerhard Bundlie, a full mounted parade at Fort Snelling and a public dinner were arranged for the ambassador.

Employees will work the same number of hours each week and receive the same weekly earnings. The plant will be closed on Sunday and Monday except for the general office and selling departments, company officials said.

Oas and five other unmarried instructors were notified last week that after the present school term, they would be released in favor of married instructors. They were informed that their work was considered satisfactory.

Nearly 300 students left their classes Tuesday and met in the school yard. More than 160 chose to go on strike following the meeting.

The students voted to protest the removal of Oas, Carol Butler, Herbert Holmes and Thomas Hovie. They did not protest the failure to rehire Miss Gladys Wellman and Miss Annette Gillespie. Oas has been principal of Buhl high school almost since its beginning.

M. H. Montgomery, school director, said the release of the instructors was part of an economy move to meet a $6,000 reduction in the school budget for the 1931-32 term. Unmarried members of the faculty were removed from the payroll as better able to stand the cut than married instructors, he said.

Students pointed out in rebuttal that the notice of release to the instructors said that six married instructors would be hired to replace the five single members of the faculty.

"I want the students to return to classes," Oas said today. "If they want to protest the board's action, they should do it by deputations."

"On some of the salaries paid I do not see how married men could support a family."

CLEVER GANGSTER HIDEAWAY FOUND

USED AS MEETING PLACE AND LOOT CACHE IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., May 13.—(U.P.)—Six men were under arrest today after a police raid on what was said to be one of the most cleverly constructed gangster hideaways ever discovered in Minneapolis.

Police believed the hideaway was used as a meeting place for criminals and a place to hide their loot. An exit over the roof and a secret room were features of the establishment, which was located in an apartment house.

Four rooms on the second floor of the building were believed to have served as the gangsters' meeting place. A trap door in the ceiling led to a concealed room above.

A rope and a sack was part of the equipment, evidently for use in quickly getting guns or other evidence into the upper room in case of a police raid.

A door from the upper room led to the roof of the building. The building was connected with another apartment house next door by planks. Four detectives were required to make the raid, two of them standing guard on the roof of the building next door and the others entering the suspected building.

112 PERSONS ARE INDICTED, 46 RING LEADERS ARRESTED

Moscow, May 13.—(U.P.)—One hundred and twelve persons were indicted today, and 46 ring-leaders were arrested, on charges of being implicated in an extensive conspirative organization headed by a former nobleman, now a time-keeper, named Ivanov.

They were charged with sabotage costing millions of rubles through misdirecting railroad consignments, especially of machinery and motor parts.

4 HI-JACKERS IN BOLD ATTEMPT TO ROB LIQUOR STORE

EL SALVADOR LEGATION BEARS BRUNT OF THEIR ATTACK

DON CARLOS LEIVA, CHARGE OF THE LEGATION, SEVERELY BEATEN

Washington, May 13.—(U.P.)—Four hi-jackers today made a bold attempt to rob the El Salvador legation of its store of liquor, severely beat Don Carlos Leiva, charge of the legation, and escaped in an automobile.

The brazen attempt to remove legal liquor stores from foreign property in the capital is the first of its kind on record. Leiva was taken to emergency hospital with a fractured skull as a result of being struck repeatedly with a claw hammer by the bandits.

Entering the legation, the charge saw four men descending steps which led to the floor on which the liquor locker was located. All of them, he said, were armed, and warned him to leave the premises.

Disregarding their threats, he leaped upon them, at the same time drawing a revolver and firing two shots. The shots frightened the thugs who fled after brutally pummeling the diplomat.

WAGE REDUCTIONS CAUSE WALK-OUT

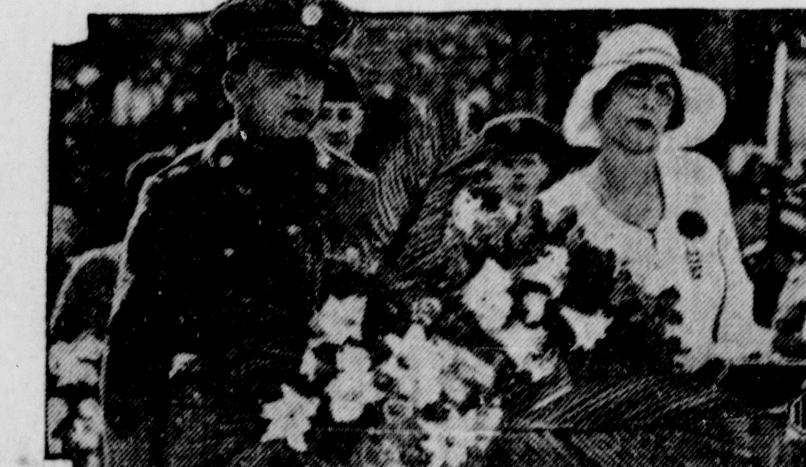

1,800 EMPLOYEES OF THE EMPIRE STEEL CORPORATION OUT AT MANSFIELD, O.

Mansfield, Ohio, May 13.—(U.P.)—Wage reductions totaling 30 per cent in one year were declared responsible for the walk-out of 1,800 employees of the Empire Steel Corporation here today as strike leaders prepared a list of demands to submit to corporation officials.

Less than 12 hours after their unexpected walkout, the strikers had organized to combat repeated wage reductions in this section. They plan to unionize steel workers at the plant. Empire steel is an open shop corporation.

Although the strike, which started last night when corporation officials announced a 15 per cent wage cut, was conducted in an orderly manner, it was reported today that the corporation had posted guards on the plant's property. Strikers were warned against violence at a huge mass meeting immediately following the walk-out.

Honor Mothers at Tomb

Mothers of the hero dead of the World War were honored at impressive ceremonies in Arlington Cemetery, Washington, D. C., on Mothers' Day. Mrs. Virgil McClure, National President of the American War Mothers, is shown placing a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in the National Cemetery.

SEEKING COURT ACTION TO NULLIFY FIVE INDICTMENTS

WERE RETURNED AGAINST MINNEAPOLIS POLICEMEN BY SPECIAL GRAND JURY

CHARGED THEY WERE MADE AFTER REGULAR SESSION OF JURY ENDED

Minneapolis, Minn., May 13.—(U.P.)—A court action to nullify five indictments returned against policemen by the famous special grand jury, which has just adjourned after six busy weeks, was under way today in Minneapolis.

Attacks on the legality of the indictments was made from several angles. The chief objection to them, however, was that they were returned after the regular session of the jury had ended.

The court action was started by attorneys for Joseph Lehmyer, night captain of detectives who was indicted on charges of wilful neglect of duty and accepting a gratuity.

Other indicted policemen are Sergeant Matt Neary, Detective Fred Schroeder, Patrolman William Mealy and E. F. Gustafson, suspended head of the morals squad.

Merrill Hutchinson, foreman of the grand jury, and Dan Harding, special investigator, meanwhile, were awaiting action on warrants against them charging subornation of perjury.

Harold Brevik, secretary to Mayor W. F. Kunze, charged in the warrants that Hutchinson and Harding attempted to "frame" him and several policemen on charges of collecting protection money from vice resorts.

They appeared in district court yesterday, but county prosecutors refused to press the charges against them, saying they knew nothing of the warrants. Brevik said today he will ask the state's attorney to appoint a special prosecutor.

BLACKMER'S FINE UP TO SUPREME COURT

Washington, May 13.—(U.P.)—Harry M. Blackmer, oil man now in France, whose sentence to pay a fine of $60,000 for contempt of court growing out of the federal oil investigation recently was upheld by the District of Columbia appellate court, today was granted a stay of mandate pending appeal to the supreme court.

Under the stay the fine will not be collected until the supreme court has passed upon the case.

No mention was made during today's proceedings of the case of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, whose sentence of a year in prison and fine of $100,000 was upheld at the same time the court ruled on Blackmer's case. Fall has said he would not appeal.

NAUTILUS PASSES SUBMERGENCE TEST

New London, Conn., May 13.—(U.P.)—The submarine Nautilus in which two dozen explorers hope to reach the North Pole this summer, passed successfully today its first submergence test since it was rebuilt for the under-ice voyage.

The long, slender craft went down three times in the Thames river off Bailey's Point, where the water is about 50 feet deep. Motors and pumps were tested.

After the tests, Capt. Sloan Danehower, commander, pronounced "everything all fine."

BIG BUSINESS SETS A NEW RECORD FOR WORLD-WIDE DEAL

New York, May 13.—(U.P.)—Big business, moving with machine-like precision, has set a new record for world-wide transactions. Comptroller Charles W. Berry offered $52,000,000 worth of New York city bonds for sale. A short time later they were sold to a banking syndicate headed by the National City company, at the exceptionally low rate of interest of 2.997 per cent.

Public offering of the bonds was made immediately and orders began to pour in from throughout the United States and many foreign countries. Ten minutes after the books were opened, resale of the bonds was completed, making the transaction the fastest and most successful of its kinds in the memory of municipal bond specialists.

HEAR RUMORS OF DISAFFECTION AGAINST HOOVER

PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICAN BLOC INTENSIFIES THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST PRESIDENT

AIMS TO PREVENT RENOMINATION OF EXECUTIVE TO THE OFFICE

Washington, May 13.—(U.P.)—Rumors of disaffection against President Hoover were current today as the progressive republican bloc intensified its campaign to prevent renomination of the president.

Senator Brookhart, republican, of Iowa, said he had received many letters endorsing his recent proposal for a progressive candidate instead of Mr. Hoover. He said such letters had come from eastern as well as western states, and included in his list "every eastern state except New Jersey."

Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, criticized the president last night in a radio speech for refusing to permit use of federal funds to assist the 6,000,000 unemployed. He declared himself in favor of tariff revision, and also attacked the administration's farm relief program. He demanded increased taxes on the rich and on estates. In each of his major theses he took a position directly opposed to Hoover policies.

Another more prominent western republican leader said he could not recall a time when politics occupied such a large share of conversation so long before election. The north-west, he said, "is just milling around like a herd of cattle."

He quoted a correspondent who said Minnesota was "anti-republican but not yet democratic."

At the same time the democratic strategists were busy getting under way a "harmony drive" to restore to the fold those sections of the democratic south which became disaffected in 1928. Incidental to this drive was the purpose of assuring the south that the northern democrats had no desire to force their anti-prohibition views on their prohibitionist colleagues.

In line with this drive, J. J. Shouse, executive chairman of the democratic national committee, last night addressed, by invitation, the Texas legislature. This, in view of the fact that Texas went for Hoover in the last presidential election, was considered significant of a possible reversal of opinion.

Shouse, a Raskob appointee, assured the legislators that while he personally approved Chairman Raskob's "home-rule" plan of prohibition reform, no attempt was being made or would be made to force the south to accept an anti-prohibition platform. All he asked was a frank expression.

He devoted most of his speech to criticism of the administration's course during the economic depression, thus to some extent subordinating the liquor issue.

GRAF ZEPPELIN TO MAKE SIX ATLANTIC CROSSINGS THIS YEAR

New York, May 13.—(U.P.)—The giant dirigible Graf Zeppelin, with seven Atlantic crossings, including a flight around the world, already to her credit, is expected to make six similar trips this summer.

The air voyages are planned on a fast plane-airship schedule between Berlin and South America, Martin Wronsky, director of the Lufthansa, the German airways system, revealed before departing for home. He was aboard the Bremen today found for Germany.

He said his company also contemplates an experimental mail schedule of five days, to be established between the capitals of Europe and principal cities in the western hemisphere.

EXECUTIVE-ELECT WAS PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE

AT 74, HE BECOMES THE OLDEST PRESIDENT EVER TO HOLD OFFICE IN REPUBLIC

ELECTION ON SECOND BALLOT ASSURED WHEN BRIAND ANNOUNCED WITHDRAWAL

Versailles, France, May 13.—(U.P.)—Paul Doumer, president of the senate, was elected thirteenth president of France by parliament, meeting as a national assembly in the palace here today.

Doumer, at 74, becomes the oldest president ever to hold office in France. His election on the second ballot was assured when Aristide Briand, foreign minister and his principal rival, announced his withdrawal.

On the first ballot, Doumer led with 442 votes to 401 for Briand.

Versailles, May 13.—(U.P.)—Aristide Briand, foreign minister, acting in concert with the cabinet, announced today that he was withdrawing his candidacy for president of the republic.

BI RALPH HEINZEN
Versailles, France, May 13.—The senate and chamber of France, sitting as a national assembly, voted today for the thirteenth president of the republic.

The first ballot disclosed a close contest between Aristide Briand, the famous foreign minister, and Paul Doumer, president of the senate. Doumer had 442 votes and Briand 401. Neither had a clear majority, as required by the constitution, and a second ballot was necessary.

The ancient hall of the palace of the Bourbon kings, where the first national assembly created the republic in 1791, was the scene of wild excitement as the senators and deputies voted. Briand's enemies, seeking to prevent a crowning confirmation of his pacific foreign policies, strove mightily to elect Doumer.

The members of parliament who crowded the floor milled in excitement and acted like schoolboys. The communists shouted for the Soviet and the socialists howled in derision.

Leon Blum, the socialist, was hoisted. General Saint Just was greeted with resounding "boom-booms."

"Go to Morocco," was shouted at Painleve.

Premier Pierre Laval and Andre Tardieu were cheered.

The official number voting on the first ballot was 902, making an absolute majority, 452.

A corrected official result of the first ballot showed:

Doumer, 442; Briand, 401; Jean Kennesey, 14.

The second ballot was started at once.

THINK INSANE MAN MAY HAVE BEEN KIDNAPER TOO

San Diego, Calif., May 13.—(U.P.)—Ashur Williams, 45, who escaped from an Ohio insane asylum, today was taken to the neighborhood where Virginia Brooks lived in an effort to identify him as the kidnaper and slayer of the 11-year-old school girl.

Williams, latest suspect in the first of four slayings to shock San Diego during the past four months, was to face the parents of the victim and neighbors who knew her.

It was said by investigators that Williams, arrested in Los Angeles on a charge of mistreating a small girl, lived in San Diego about the time Virginia disappeared last February and was seen here a month later when the child's body was discovered on Camp Kearney mesa.

Cannons Roar Salute to German Ambassador

St. Paul, May 13.—(U.P.)—Nineteen cannons at the Fort Snelling military reservation roared a salute today to Dr. Friedrich Wilhelm von Prittwitz, German ambassador to the United States.

The ambassador was a guest of St. Paul for the day. He also will visit several other Minnesota towns, including St. Cloud.

Visits with Gov. Floyd B. Olson and Mayor Gerhard Bundlie, a full mounted parade at Fort Snelling and a public dinner were arranged for the ambassador.

1500 PACKING PLANT EMPLOYES TO GO ON FIVE DAY WEEK PLAN

South St. Paul, May 13.—(U.P.)—Fifteen hundred employees of the Armour and Co. packing plant here will go on a five day week plan starting next Monday.

Employees will work the same number of hours each week and receive the same weekly earnings. The plant will be closed on Sunday and Monday except for the general office and selling departments, company officials said.

CATHOLIC WOMEN TO MEET MAY 18

Number of Brainerd Ladies to Attend Conference in Duluth

The Minnesota Council of Catholic Women will hold its fourth annual spring meeting at Duluth on Monday, May 18, at the college of St. Scholastica. The Rt. Rev. Thomas A. Welch, bishop of Duluth, will celebrate the opening mass and the Rt. Rev. Joseph Schrembs, bishop of Cleveland, will also be in attendance.

Approximately 500 women, representing the council's affiliations throughout the state, are expected to be present, and a number of the members of the Brainerd council are planning on attending and also the Duluth Diocesan Council of Catholic Women at the biennial convention to be held May 17, the day preceding the state meeting. Among the groups attending will be delegates from Minneapolis, St. Paul, Ely, Proctor, Grand Rapids, Coleraine, Eveleth, Keweenaw, Virginia, International Falls, Hibbing, Cohasset, Aitkin, Marble, Taconite, Cloquet, Pine City and Walker.

The Sunday afternoon session will be conducted at the Knights of Columbus hall following the luncheon at the Northland Country club. Guests at the convention and members of the council will visit St. Mary's hospital for inspection of the occupational therapy department.

At its last meeting, the St. Francis Guild, which is affiliated with the council, elected the following officers:

President—Mrs. T. N. Brennan.

Vice President—Mrs. J. A. Bachelder.

Secretary—Mrs. I. W. Quinlan.

Treasurer—Mrs. M. Kracher.

POPPY DAYS ARE NOT TAG DAYS

(Contributed)
In Arlington rests the Unknown Soldier of America and on his tomb are flowers, a token of remembrance not to the individual, but to all the men who gave their lives during the World war. Not every one can place flowers at his shrine, but we all can wear a poppy on Poppy Days as our personal tribute to every man who died for his country.

The poppy is now the memorial flower of the French, British and Canadian World war veterans organizations, as well as of the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary. Because of the beautiful sentiment attached to the poppy, it has won a place in the hearts of the people throughout the world. Last year a few under ten million poppies were sold in America. In Brainerd, 2,500 were sold.

In every community there are the widows and orphans of veterans, the dependant families of the disabled, and the disabled men themselves, to remind us that while the war may be over, there are those who are still waging a battle to regain their health. Some of these men are earning their own living by making these poppies in the Auxiliary work shops. In the Minnesota workshop alone, 50 men are employed the year around, so the more poppies which are sold, the more men will be employed.

The proceeds from the poppy sale are used for child welfare and rehabilitation work and without these funds the American Legion and Auxiliary would be quite helpless to do those things which are the very heart and soul of the organization.

Then let us not think of Poppy Days as just "tag days" but as days set apart on which to perform the sacred task of helping the thousands of men who are disabled because of their service in time of their country's need.

Friday and Saturday, May 15 and 16, are Poppy Days. Do not pass the girls by, but stop and buy a poppy and as you pin it on your coat, drop your coins in the little box, do it reverently, remembering that those little red petals symbolize the lives of the flower of our country that were given that you and I might continue to enjoy freedom.

COULD NOT BE HELPED

The hotel guest was thoroughly annoyed. People were running backward along the corridor outside his room, making a terrible noise. So he took the telephone and spoke to the manager's office.

"I can't get to sleep with all this noise going on," he complained angrily. "I'm sorry, sir," said the voice of an excited clerk, "but I'm afraid we can't control the movements of the fire brigade."

Sore Love, Sour Honey

Love and Honey came into the life of Harry Somerfield but, apparently, he objected to their manner of arrival. Elmer Love and Hayscraft Honey were in Love's car when it collided with Somerfield's. All three men alighted.

A disagreement often moves toward brotherly salvation. And an affection stronger proves through reconciliation.

Ho, Hum!

"It says here that style experts declare a well dressed man's wardrobe will cost $5,000 this year," said the missus.

"Huh!" growled her husband, "I'd go right on being a mighty sick dressed man if that's what it costs to be well dressed."

Living in Hope

The literary critic met a young and aspiring author at his club.

"I've just read a book of yours," he said.

"My last one?" queried the author, hopefully.

"I hope so," replied the critic.

Not Many Places Left

Girl—Of course, it must be definitely understood that I could not marry a man who plays cards, drinks, smokes, stays out late or spends a lot of his time at the club. All the same, I should like him to enjoy himself.

Man (in love)—Oh, yes, but where?

Contagious

Doctor—Your wife's mind is diseased.

Jones—Great Scott, I'll get the disease, too! She's been giving me a piece of hers every morning for 20 years.

Life Grows Longer

About 200 years ago the average length of life in England and Wales was 30 years. Today the average life is fifty-six for men and sixty for women. We have gained an average of 28 years.

OH THESE WOMEN!

Indiana Wife: Take off the jewelry that the other man gave you before you married and put it away or give it away or sell it. You are endangering your home happiness with a lot of silly trinkets that I'm sure mean nothing to you. You embarrass your husband and your friends and they think you are a silly little fool. I've heard from three husbands already who told me about their wives either talking about their former beaux constantly, or displaying their jewelry and showing it to friends, embarrassing everybody present. That's not only bad taste, it's cruel to the man you love. If you were not willing to shelve all these things, why did you marry? I believe it's a harmless bit of vanity and you don't mean to be cruel, but that's what you are.

Smart little woman in San Francisco. She writes to say that she has her own way at home and here is how: Her husband doesn't like to work around the house. She wanted the bathrooms and walls and ceiling washed, and it cost quite a bit to have it done by a painter so she told him a few days before that he would do it on Saturday. He woofed about it and told her to hire someone, and she didn't answer him, just smiled pleasantly. When Saturday came she got the stepladder ready, the water and soap and cloths, and he climbed up and did the job. He was proud of his work and enjoyed it, and that ended the matter.

He doesn't like company—she says. So she invites their friends to dinner and doesn't tell him till the day of the party. That eliminates a lot of conversation. He can't back out when the guests are already invited and the dinner prepared, so everything is all right.

"In this way," she says, "I save myself a lot of unnecessary argument and we get alone fine."

There's one sure rule. If you don't talk back, there can't be any argument. If you smile and behave the way you should, and do things that you think are right, and good for both of you, your husband can't stay angry very long, and you help him over many difficult places.

Being oversensitive and talking back causes more domestic trouble than anything else in the world.

Mrs. Frances Rush took dinner Friday with her mother, Mrs. Geo. Moulster. In the afternoon the ladies drove to Brainerd to attend the musical entertainment in which little Marion Moulster took a prominent part. Marion deserves many compliments on her accomplishments. The little lady, although only five years of age now, has appeared once before in a public recital. Marion is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Moulster of Brainerd and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Moulster of this community are her grandparents.

Mrs. Clara Tollefsrud and Mrs. Oscar Seaberg exchanged calls Monday.

Ernest Glover stayed all night with Ernest and Amos Fordyce Saturday night.

Bernice Peterson spent the week end with her cousin, Ruthie Johnson. Mr. Kognlie, the Lange man, was in this community Thursday. Mr. Carlson, the Watkins man, was here Tuesday.

Supper guests at the Seaberg home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Jokela and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Johnson and two children.

Mark Westfall and son Bill and Mr. Turk sawed wood for Geo. Moulster Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Johnson and children drove to Brainerd Saturday night and visited until Sunday night at the E. M. Martin home.

Isabel Glover called at the A. E. and H. C. Johnson homes Thursday and Friday afternoons.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Jokela called at the Seaberg and H. C. Johnson homes Thursday night.

Bill and Edna Westfall and Delores Moulster called at the Olson home Sunday evening.

Mrs. Oscar Seaberg visited Thursday afternoon with her daughter, Mrs. H. C. Johnson.

Mrs. A. E. Johnson and children accompanied Jack Hundley to the school picnic at Blind Lake Friday.

Isabel Glover called at the H. C. Johnson home Sunday and Monday afternoons.

CATHOLIC WOMEN TO MEET MAY 18

Number of Brainerd Ladies to Attend Conference in Duluth

The Minnesota Council of Catholic Women will hold its fourth annual spring meeting at Duluth on Monday, May 18, at the college of St. Scholastica. The Rt. Rev. Thomas A. Welch, bishop of Duluth, will celebrate the opening mass and the Rt. Rev. Joseph Schrenks, bishop of Cleveland, will also be in attendance.

Approximately 500 women, representing the council's affiliations throughout the state, are expected to be present, and a number of the members of the Brainerd council are planning on attending and also the Duluth Diocesan Council of Catholic Women at the biennial convention to be held May 17, the day preceding the state meeting. Among the groups attending will be delegates from Minneapolis, St. Paul, Ely, Proctor, Grand Rapids, Coleraine, Eveleth, Keewatin, Virginia, International Falls, Hibbing, Cohasset, Aitkin, Marble, Taconite, Cloquet, Pine City and Walker.

The Sunday afternoon session will be conducted at the Knights of Columbus hall following the luncheon at the Northland Country club. Guests at the convention and members of the council will visit St. Mary's hospital for inspection of the occupational therapy department.

At its last meeting, the St. Francis Guild, which is affiliated with the council, elected the following officers: President—Mrs. T. N. Brennan. Vice President—Mrs. J. A. Bachelder. Secretary—Mrs. I. W. Quinlen. Treasurer—Mrs. M. Kracher.

POPPY DAYS ARE NOT TAG DAYS

(Contributed)

In Arlington rests the Unknown Soldier of America and on his tomb are flowers, a token of remembrance not to the individual, but to all the men who gave their lives during the World war. Not every one can place flowers at his shrine, but we all can wear a poppy on Poppy Days as our personal tribute to every man who died for his country.

The poppy is now the memorial flower of the French, British and Canadian World war veterans organizations, as well as of the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary. Because of the beautiful sentiment attached to the poppy, it has won a place in the hearts of the people throughout the world. Last year a few under ten million poppies were sold in America. In Brainerd 2,500 were sold.

In every community there are the widows and orphans of veterans, the dependent families of the disabled, and the disabled men themselves, to remind us that while the war may be over, there are those who are still waging a battle to regain their health. Some of these men are earning their own living by making these poppies in the Auxiliary work shops. In the Minnesota workshop alone, 50 men are employed the year around, so the more poppies which are sold, the more men will be employed.

The proceeds from the poppy sale are used for child welfare and rehabilitation work and without these funds the American Legion and Auxiliary would be quite helpless to do those things which are the very heart and soul of the organization.

Then let us not think of Poppy Days as just "tag days" but as days set apart on which to perform the sacred task of helping the thousands of men who are disabled because of their service in time of their country's need.

Friday and Saturday, May 15 and 16, are Poppy Days. Do not pass the girls by, but stop and buy a poppy and as you pin it on your coat, drop your coins in the little box, do it reverently, remembering that those little red petals symbolize the lives of the flower of our country that were given that you and I might continue to enjoy freedom.

COULD NOT BE HELPED

The hotel guest was thoroughly annoyed. People were running backward along the corridor outside his room, making a terrible noise. So he took the telephone and spoke to the manager's office.

"I can't get to sleep with all this noise going on," he complained angrily. "I'm sorry, sir," said the voice of an excited clerk, "but I'm afraid we can't control the movements of the fire brigade."

Sore Love, Sour Honey

Love and Honey came into the life of Harry Somerfield but, apparently, he objected to their manner of arrival. Elmer Love and Honey Honey were in Love's car when it collided with Somerfield's. All three men alighted.

"Love," testified Somerfield, "hit me in the jaw, and Honey kicked me."—Washington Star.

IF SALARY SUITED

Jack—I think we could be very congenial, don't you?

Jill—How much do you earn?

Advantage in Disagreement

A disagreement often moves toward brotherly salvation. And an affection stronger proves through reconciliation.

Ho, Hum!

"It says here that style experts declare a well dressed man's wardrobe will cost $3,000 this year," said the missus.

"Huh!" growled her husband, "I'll go right on being a mighty sick dressed man if that's what it costs to be well dressed."

Living in Hope

The literary critic met a young and aspiring author at his club.

"I've just read a book of yours," he said.

"My last one?" queried the author, hopefully.

"I hope so," replied the critic.

Girl—Of course, it must be definitely understood that I could not marry a man who plays cards, drinks, smokes, stays out late or spends a lot of his time at the club. All the same, I should like him to enjoy himself.

Man (in love)—Oh, yes, but where?

Contagious

Doctor—Your wife's mind is diseased.

Jones—Great Scott, I'll get the disease, too! She's been giving me a piece of hers every morning for 20 years.

Life Grows Longer

About 200 years ago the average length of life in England and Wales was 30 years. Today the average life is fifty-six for men and sixty for women. We have gained an average of 28 years.

Tomorrow evening, May 14, the Deerwood Branch No. 144 S. A. F. are giving a hard time dance following their regular meeting. Members of the local order have received invitations to attend.

OH THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

Copyright 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Indiana Wife: Take off the jewelry that the other man gave you before you married and put it away or give it away or sell it. You are endangering your home happiness with a lot of silly trinkets that I'm sure mean nothing to you. You embarrass your husband and your friends and they think you are a silly little fool. I've heard from three husbands already who told me about their wives either talking about their former beaux constantly, or displaying their jewelry and showing it to friends, embarrassing everybody present. That's not only bad taste, it's cruel to the man you love. If you were not willing to shelve all these things, why did you marry? I believe it's a harmless bit of vanity and you don't mean to be cruel, but that's what you are.

Smart little woman in San Francisco. She writes to say that she has her own way at home and here is how: Her husband doesn't like to work around the house. She wanted the bathrooms and walls and ceiling washed, and it cost quite a bit to have it done by a painter so she told him a few days before that he would do it on Saturday. He woofed about it and told her to hire someone, and she didn't answer him, just smiled pleasantly. When Saturday came she got the stepladder ready, the water and soap and cloths, and he climbed up and did the job. He was proud of his work and enjoyed it, and that ended the matter.

He doesn't like company—she says. So she invites her friends to dinner and doesn't tell him till the day of the party. That eliminates a lot of conversation. He can't back out when the guests are already invited and the dinner prepared, so everything is all right.

"In this way," she says, "I save myself a lot of unnecessary argument and we get alone fine."

There's one sure rule. If you don't talk back, there can't be any argument. If you smile and behave the way you should, and do things that you think are right, and good for both of you, your husband can't stay angry very long, and you help him over many difficult places.

Being oversensitive and talking back causes more domestic trouble than anything else in the world.

CIGARETTE PRIZE WINNERS NAMED

Boston Milkman Wins $25,000 First Prize; Duluth Real Estate Dealer Gets $5,000

Winston-Salem, N. C., May 13.—Jas. Thomas Sharkey, 32, a milkman in Boston, was awarded the $25,000 first prize in the $50,000 nation-wide contest for the best letter setting forth the advantages to smokers of the new moisture-proof cellophane wrapper on Camel cigarette packages, officials of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and the contest judges announced today. Sharkey lives at 101 Train Street, Dorchester, Mass., a suburb of Boston.

Mrs. Walter Sweet, mother of three children and wife of a Marine Corps captain now stationed at the Brooklyn, N. Y., Navy Yard, won the second prize of $10,000.

Third prize of $5,000 went to Julius M. Nolte, real estate dealer of Duluth, Minn., and former secretary of the Duluth Commercial Club.

In all thirty-eight prizes were awarded, of which five were for $1,000 each, five were for $500 each, and twenty-five were for $100 each. Judges of the contest were Roy Howard, Chairman of the Board of the Scripps-Howard League of newspapers; Charles Dana Gibson, famous artist and publisher of Life Magazine, and Ray Long, President of the International Magazine Company and editor of Cosmopolitan.

The five prizes of $1,000 each were awarded to the following:

Albert B. Franklin, 3rd, 22-year-old graduate student at Harvard, who lives at 52 Kirkland Street, Cambridge, Mass.

John R. McCarthy, 38, blind tobacco store proprietor of 721 Main Street, Willimantic, Conn.

Frederick E. Robinson, Latin-American mining engineer residing in Coronado Beach, Calif.

William A. Schrader, aerial photographer at Curtis-Wright Airport, Louisville, Ky., who lives in the Brent Apartments in New Albany, Ind.

Dr. D. H. Soper of 523 E. Brown Street, Iowa City, Ia., an instructor in dentistry at the University of Iowa.

The complete list of winners will be found in an advertisement in today's issue.

A total of 952,228 answers were received in the contest, which was announced in an eight-day newspaper advertising campaign in which 1713 dailies, 2139 weeklies and 426 college and financial newspapers were used. The only other announcement of the contest was on the Camel Pleasure Hour broadcasting network and consisted merely of an invitation to read the contest details in the newspapers. Sharkey, the winner of the first prize of $25,000, is married, and is a milk route foreman at the South Boston plant of H. P. Hood & Sons, Inc., milk distributors, and lives at 101 Train Street, Dorchester, Mass. He wears overalls at his work, and is slender, of medium height, and has deep-set blue eyes.

Born in County Tipperary, Ireland, he came to the United States alone at the age of sixteen. Landing at Ellis Island in New York, he went at once to Boston, where he did odd jobs. Eight years ago he got a job with the Hood Company delivering milk. He rose to the rank of foreman and now has several milk routes under his supervision.

Sharkey believes he is best fitted for a salesman. It was this flair for selling, plus his own experience in getting his cigarettes wet while delivering milk that caused him to enter the Camel contest. He was quick to note the advantages of the new cellophane wrapper on Camel cigarette packages, and his letter was based on personal experiences in testing the wrapper both as to protection of the fresh tobacco flavor, and to the ability of the new package to exclude rain, moisture and germs.

Mrs. Sweet, winner of the $10,000 second prize, is the mother of three boys, the oldest of whom is only ten. A graduate of Radcliffe College in 1920, she has traveled with her Captain husband to Marine Corps posts in Santa Domingo, the Virgin Islands, and other out-of-the-way places. She experienced the hurricane in Porto Rico, and was in Dover, N. J., at the time of the big explosion there. She is a sports-woman, and is tremendously interested in child psychology.

In her travels about the world with her husband, Mrs. Sweet observed how torrid and damp weather in varying climates parched or mildewed cigarettes. She noted that carton after carton of cigarettes shipped to the Marines spoiled and had to be thrown away, and easily realized how the protecting moisture-proof cellophane wrapper on Camels would result in fresh sweet smokes for service men in distant lands.

The third prize-winner, Mr. Nolte, who will receive $5,000, is a real estate dealer, and instructor in the English extension division of the University of Minnesota.

He lives with his wife in the Duluth suburb of Glen Avon, and is a Yale graduate and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity. He is a typical outdoor man, and bird lover, hunter and fisherman. During the war he was an aviator with the American Army, and is a former deck-hand and forester. He is the father of four children.

Nolte based his contest letter on the many advantages offered to the outdoor cigarette smoker by the new moisture-proof cellophane wrapper which protects Camel cigarettes in all kinds of weather and keeps them fresh.

Telegrams of notification were sent to each of the prize winners yesterday by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. Winners of the three major prizes were invited by the Company to come to Winston-Salem in the near future to receive their checks at a formal presentation. Checks will be mailed within the next few days to the thirty-five other prize winners.

CIGARETTE PRIZE WINNERS NAMED

Boston Milkman Wins $25,000 First Prize; Duluth Real Estate Dealer Gets $5,000

Winston-Salem, N. C., May 13—Jas. Thomas Sharkey, 32, a milkman in Boston, was awarded the $25,000 first prize in the $50,000 nation-wide contest for the best letter setting forth the advantages to smokers of the new moisture-proof cellophane wrapper on Camel cigarette packages, officials of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and the contest judges announced today. Sharkey lives at 101 Train Street, Dorchester, Mass., a suburb of Boston.

Mrs. Walter Sweet, mother of three children and wife of a Marine Corps captain now stationed at the Brooklyn, N. Y. Navy Yard, won the second prize of $10,000.

Third prize of $5,000 went to Julius M. Nolte, real estate dealer of Duluth, Minn., and former secretary of the Duluth Commercial Club.

In all thirty-eight prizes were awarded, of which five were for $1,000 each, five were for $500 each, and twenty-five were for $100 each. Judges of the contest were Roy Howard, Chairman of the Board of the Scripps-Howard League of Newspapers; Charles Dana Gibson, famous artist and publisher of Life Magazine, and Ray Long, President of the International Magazine Company and editor of Cosmopolitan.

The five prizes of $1,000 each were awarded to the following:

Albert B. Franklin, 3rd, 22-year-old graduate student at Harvard, who lives at 52 Kirkland Street, Cambridge, Mass.

John R. McCarthy, 38, blind tobacco store proprietor of 721 Main Street, Willimantic, Conn.

Frederick E. Robinson, Latin-American mining engineer residing in Coronado Beach, Calif.

William A. Schrader, aerial photographer at Curtis-Wright Airport, Louisville, Ky., who lives in the Brent Apartments in New Albany, Ind.

Dr. D. H. Soper of 523 E. Brown Street, Iowa City, Ia., an instructor, in dentistry at the University of Iowa.

The complete list of winners will be found in an advertisement in today's issue.

A total of 952,228 answers were received in the contest, which was announced in an eight-day newspaper advertising campaign in which 1713 dailies, 2139 weeklies and 426 college and financial newspapers were used. The only other announcement of the contest was on the Camel Pleasure Hour broadcasting network and consisted merely of an invitation to read the contest details in the newspapers.

Sharkey, the winner of the first prize of $25,000, is married, and is a milk route foreman at the South Boston plant of H. P. Hood & Sons, Inc., milk distributors, and lives at 101 Train Street, Dorchester, Mass. He wears overalls at his work, and is slender, of medium height, and has deep-set blue eyes.

Born in County Tipperary, Ireland, he came to the United States alone at the age of sixteen. Landing at Ellis Island in New York, he went at once to Boston, where he did odd jobs. Eight years ago he got a job with the Hood Company delivering milk. He rose to the rank of foreman and now has several milk routes under his supervision.

Sharkey believes he is best fitted for a salesman. It was this flair for selling, plus his own experience in getting his cigarettes wet while delivering milk that caused him to enter the Camel contest. He was quick to note the advantages of the new cellophane wrapper on Camel cigarette packages, and his letter was based on personal experiences in testing the wrapper both as to protection of the fresh tobacco flavor, and to the ability of the new package to exclude rain, moisture and germs.

Mrs. Sweet, winner of the $10,000 second prize, is the mother of three boys, the oldest of whom is only ten. A graduate of Radcliffe College in 1920, she has traveled with her Captain husband to Marine Corps posts in Santa Domingo, the Virgin Islands, and other out-of-the-way places. She experienced the hurricane in Porto Rico, and was in Dover, N. J., at the time of the big explosion there. She is a sports-woman, and is tremendously interested in child psychology.

In her travels about the world with her husband, Mrs. Sweet observed how torrid and damp weather in varying climates parched or mildewed cigarettes. She noted that carton after carton of cigarettes shipped to the Marines spoiled and had to be thrown away, and easily realized how the protecting moisture-proof cellophane wrapper on Camels would result in fresh sweet smokes for service men in distant lands.

The third prize-winner, Mr. Nolte, who will receive $5,000, is a real estate dealer, and instructor in the English extension division of the University of Minnesota.

He lives with his wife in the Duluth suburb of Glen Avon, and is a Yale graduate and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity. He is a typical outdoor man, and bird lover, hunter and fisherman. During the war he was an aviator with the American Army, and is a former deck-hand and forester. He is the father of four children.

Nolte based his contest letter on the many advantages offered to the outdoor cigarette smoker by the new moisture-proof cellophane wrapper which protects Camel cigarettes in all kinds of weather and keeps them fresh.

Telegrams of notification were sent to each of the prize winners yesterday by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. Winners of the three major prizes were invited by the Company to come to Winston-Salem in the near future to receive their checks at a formal presentation. Checks will be mailed within the next few days to the thirty-five other prize winners.

Men and Machines

DURING the next decade the United States is probably going to realize that its greatest problem is making its humanitarian accomplishments jibe with its technical and mechanical advances. Progress so far has tended to be one-sided, says the Bemidji Pioneer. Human values, having gone unnoticed, have suffered.

The great consideration is to offer some kind of remunerative work in other lines to those men displaced by machinery. Can our business managers, our scientists, our engineers, our inventors, keep pace with such an economic demand?

In a recent issue of The New Republic, Edmund Wilson discusses a great automobile factory from these two aspects.

He begins by describing the factory purely as a mechanical thing, a device for turning raw ore into finished machines that roll away under their own power. His prose grows almost lyric as he tells of the marvelously-planned machinery, the perfectly-devised system for doing a dozen things at once, the almost incredibly skillful engines by which modern America does its work.

That part of his article is nothing less than a rhapsody. Admiration is evident in every line.

Then, abruptly, he switches to the human side. He records conversations that he has had with workers. He gives glimpses into their homes, shows stretches of their lives, tells how the whole business affects them. And this part of his story is in startling contrast to the first part.

Where everything in the first part bespeaks admiration, the second part is pitched in a different key. Workers complain of uncertainty; at any time a man is apt to find himself out of a job. The work is hard and exhausting. And always there is the cry for speed, speed, so that a worker goes home at night fagged out, unable to do anything with his leisure. There is no security, there is no contentment. A man is always under a strain.

Now it is possible, of course, that the workers Mr. Wilson talked with were unusual specimens. Manufacturers of automobiles will undoubtedly protest that working conditions in their plants are constantly being improved, are better than the average, are as humane as is possible under the circumstances. But that is not the point.

The point is that a man of liberal outlook, visiting a huge American factory, has unreserved admiration for the purely mechanical side of things but has grave doubts where the human side is involved. Our machines, in other words, are nearly perfect; conditions for the men who serve the machines, on the other hand, are very far from perfection.

The development in these parallel fields has not been even. We are suffering badly from this unevenness today. During the next few years we shall discover that this is a problem of major importance.

An Expert Dirt Road Grader

ONE of the most expert dirt road graders is a county man who operates on the dirt road leading from State Trunk Highway No. 19 to the peninsula jutting between North Round and North Long lakes. He permits the original hard pan to remain and treats any developing ruts with the most capable results. The various undulations in the road are permitted to remain, for to remove them would cut through the hard pan and expose a possible deep layer of common soft soil or sand.

Summer visitors from various states have looked at this stretch of road, have even taken pictures of the same and declared it one of the finest kept dirt roads in this or many other states.

The crown is kept at just the right height, the sides are properly sloped, the ditches are kept clear.

Neighborhood

It is gratifying in more ways than one to live in the average small town or in the country because of the fine neighborliness always manifested. Where every one knows everybody else by the first name, is interested in the small happenings, and is not too busy to aid when misfortune strikes some neighbor in the block or community or section, it brings peace and contentment to all.

How different from the large city where one flat dweller oftentimes does not even know the name of his next door neighbor, and for that matter does not care to know, either. Such a state of affairs makes the average family sometimes very lonely in the largest city.

Small town ways may not be like those of a large city, but they carry a lot of comfort and goodwill and make life worth living.

Manufacturing Statistics

MORE than 4,300 manufacturing establishments in the state of Minnesota, employing more than 120,000 persons, produced approximately $1,171,710,384 worth of goods during 1930, the United States Bureau of the Census has announced.

The census of manufacture covers printing and publishing establishments and all custom work.

In Crow Wing county there were 25 manufacturing establishments of all kinds which employed 1,431 wage earners (average for the year) and made products valued at $9,611,694.

In value of manufactured products in cities, Minneapolis led with $361,075,199; St. Paul was next with $206,918,164; Duluth, $58,903,568; Mankato, $9,642,227; St. Cloud, $7,780,148; Furbault, $5,649,338; Rochester, $3,073,756; Hibbing, $640,237.

Cleaning Up and Painting Up

BRAINERD is achieving a real worth while record in painting up and cleaning up. A walk or drive about the city will convince any one of this fact.

Houses are being repainted. Yards are being cleaned up. Alleys and streets are growing as neat as a pin. Money is being spent on improving lawns, planting trees, etc. Gardens are being planted.

On all sides one witnesses this idea being exemplified, of making Brainerd a spotless town, inviting alike to residents and visitors.

A PRIZE of $50 for the best original sentimental or whimsical song about the University of Minnesota has been announced by Earle G. Killeen, professor of music. According to Killeen, Minnesota needs more songs which can be sung by small groups at informal gatherings.

Lost Ten Dollar Bill Found

By RUTH DAVIS SARGENT

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service.)

HE GAVE it to her that morning with quite a bit of gusto. It was such a lot of money, all together, to hand to anybody. Stella flushed with pride as she slipped it in her worn pocketbook.

"Well, my girl," Bill had said. "I guess now you and the young ones'll be getting some of those things you've been telling me you needed."

"Oh, Bill, honey," Stella said. "Isn't it wonderful after these four long weeks with you wearing out shoe leather trying to find a job, to have finally gotten placed, and to be giving me ten dollars to fix up the kiddies and ourselves?"

"Don't forget yourself, Stella," Bill admonished her. "If you see some little thing you want, buy it." And then, slowly, "but go easy with it, old girl. I don't need to tell you that, I know. But ten dollars is a lot of money to-day. Buy the things we really need."

"I'll hang on to it till I see just the right things, Bill dear," she promised, kissing him good-by at the door.

Stella's work went quickly that morning. She whistled a little tune as she did the dishes. It had been so long since they had had money. The kiddies were a little ragged and worn in their last year's clothes. And Bill, the things he needed, and herself, too. Well, she'd buy some of them this fine morning. She'd surprise Bill tonight with just what that ten dollars could do.

It didn't seem possible on that early fall day that tragedy could lurk around Stella, when she felt so happy and secure with that carefully folded bill in her purse. But it struck her forcibly as she stood beside the stocking counter in Blakeley's big store, about to pay for some socks, her first purchase for Bill. The ten dollars was not in her pocketbook. Frantically, she searched the shabby envelope she carried, discovered the hole in the inner pocket where she had tucked the bill, retraced her steps anxiously to the very door of the store. But the ten dollars was gone.

She thought her heart would break as she stepped into the busy street. Bill's hard-earned ten dollars gone! How could she have been so careless. Why hadn't she noticed that hole in the pocketbook before she had placed that precious bill within it.

She paused a moment before the entrance of the great Hotel Graydon leaning against a pillar for support. The world had gone dizzy and black before her eyes.

A car, large and shining, drove up before the Graydon, a chauffeur at the wheel. A lady, beautifully gowned and middle-aged, came down the Graydon steps to enter it. Blindly, Stella moved on. She must not make a display of herself on the public street. Then something brushed her elbow. She turned and found it the hand of the woman who had come down the hotel steps.

"Is something the matter?" the woman asked kindly. "You looked as if you were about to fall. Are you faint?"

"Thank you; no," Stella spoke bravely, but there was no mistaking the tears in her eyes.

"Won't you tell me what's troubling you?" the woman urged. "I can see you are bothered by something. Perhaps, it might help you if you knew I had a daughter once, a girl who would be about your age today. I lost her."

The sympathy Stella saw in every line of the sweetly saddened face regarding her was exactly what she needed.

"Oh, I shouldn't tell you this," she began. "I don't even know you. But it's nearly killing me. This morning my husband, Bill, oh, you can't guess how good he is to me, gave me ten dollars to buy things for the babies and myself. He worked so hard for it. And now, well, I don't know how, but I've lost it! And it was all Bill had to give. And I've lost it!"

Tears poured unrestrainedly down Stella's cheeks. It seemed so even more monstrous now that she had said it, that she had lost that ten dollars. Then she was surprised by a light in the woman's eyes.

"Do you know, my dear," the woman was saying excitedly, fumbling in her own beaded purse. "It's the most curious thing, but Jason, he's my chauffeur, found this ten-dollar bill in front of one of the large stores. I think it was—er—"

"Blakeley's?" Stella asked eagerly.

"Yes, Blakeley's," the woman went on. "and, my dear, fancy finding you just after you'd lost it!"

"Why, how wonderful," Stella exclaimed. "To have you find me right after I'd lost it," she echoed like a child.

"Well, run do your errands, my dear!" The woman smiled and gave her a kindly, maternal push.

And it wasn't until after the woman had departed in her great car, and Stella was on her way rejoicing with the ten-dollar bill held close in her hand, that it dawned upon her that she wasn't clasping the same ten-dollar bill at all with which she had started from home. This one was new and fresh. The other had been overworked and crumpled. But the woman and her car were gone. Stella had no idea who she was. And she still had ten dollars with which to buy things for the babies. Stella's heart gave a great bound of felicity. What a good old world it was after all!

Naughty Impulse That Was Foiled by Chivalry

Among the good stories told by Miss Jane Harrison, the famous lecturer in classical archeology at Newham college, Cambridge, England, in her autobiography, "Reminiscences of a Student's Life," is this one:

Miss Harrison was for a time a magistrate, and on one occasion there appeared before the bench a certain prisoner who, it seems, had used peculiarly foul language. Instead of repeating it the clerk had had a typed copy made, which was circulated on the bench. Miss Harrison says:

"The unknown to me has always had an irresistible lure, and all my life I have had a curiosity to know what really bad language consisted of. In the stables at home I had heard an occasional 'd—n' from the lips of a groom, but that was not very informing."

"Now was the chance of my life. The paper reached the old gentleman next me. I had all but stretched out an eager hand. He bent over me in a fatherly way and said:

"I am sure you will not want to see this."

"I was pining to read it, but sixty years of sex repression had done their work. I summoned my last blush, cast down my eyes, and said: 'Oh, no! No. Thank you so much.'"

"Elate with chivalry, he bowed and pocketed the script."—Kansas City Times.

Early English Dramas Acted Only on Sunday

Queen Elizabeth patronized Sunday plays, as did also James I, and even the higher clergy took no exception to the practice. Indeed, we read of the then bishop of London producing "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at his town house on a Sunday evening as late as 1631. The practice, however, was not without many opponents, and there can be no doubt that Sunday performances had not a little to do with the Puritan dislike of playgoing of every description.—Manchester (Eng.) Covered Wagon Days

In the days of the pioneer treks across the plains courage was required to face the 2,000 miles stretching blankly in front of them. A typical train consisted of one wagon, "two yoke of four-year-old steers and one yoke of cows." In front of them were rivers, mountains, thirst, hunger, privation and the pestilence that overtook migrating hordes. Soon they were in a column of wagons said to be 500 miles long—all moving toward the west, their occupants without proper food, dependent upon unhealthy streams for water, enveloped in an intolerable dust. In calm weather the dust would rise so thick at times that the lead team of oxen could not be seen from the wagon. Then, again, the steady flow of wind would hurl the dust and sand like fine hail, with force enough to sting the face and hands.

Steel Plow in America

In this country, about 1797, John Newbold demonstrated a cast-iron plow. It was similar to cast-iron plows which had been demonstrated shortly before in England. Records indicate that farmers feared detrimental effects from so much iron in contact with the soil, and evidently this first American cast-iron plow was never repaired after its moldboard became broken. The obstinate quality of the soil in the Mississippi valley led to the use of steel instead of iron strips on the moldboards of plows. John Deere, 1837, and William Parlin, 1842, were pioneers in the steel plow business of the Middle West. Much credit is due also to James Oliver, who, beginning his experiments in 1853, greatly advanced the process for chilling cast-iron plow points.

Dumb

A seven-year-old Cleveland boy believes that Santa Claus has a very poor memory. Just before Christmas the lad's mother took him downtown to see Santa Claus, and the boy told what presents he wanted in his stock-in-g.

A few days later another whiskered Santa Claus stopped the lad and inquired:

"What would you like for Christmas, sonny?" Whereupon the chap registered keen disappointment and answered:

"Of all the chumps! I knew that you'd forget what I told you."

Early Road Builder

Swedish heroes of a former day are recalled by the story of the deeds of Jarlabanke, one of the earliest of the Viking road builders, which are revealed on one of the Rune stones recently found at Taebj. More than 1,000 Rune stones, dating from the Ninth to the Eleventh centuries, are now registered. One stone glorifies Jarlabanke for building a road across the swamp in Taebj. The road is still in use, and even to this day, carries the name "Jarlabanke's bridge."

Men and Machines

DURING the next decade the United States is probably going to realize that its greatest problem is making its humanitarian accomplishments jibe with its technical and mechanical advances. Progress so far has tended to be one-sided, says the Bemidji Pioneer. Human values, having gone unnoticed, have suffered.

The great consideration is to offer some kind of remunerative work in other lines to those men displaced by machinery. Can our business managers, our scientists, our engineers, our inventors, keep pace with such an economic demand?

In a recent issue of The New Republic, Edmund Wilson discusses a great automobile factory from these two aspects.

He begins by describing the factory purely as a mechanical thing, a device for turning raw ore into finished machines that roll away under their own power. His prose grows almost lyric as he tells of the marvelously-planned machinery, the perfectly-devised system for doing a dozen things at once, the almost incredibly skillful engines by which modern America does its work.

That part of his article is nothing less than a rhapsody. Admiration is evident in every line.

Then, abruptly, he switches to the human side. He records conversations that he has had with workers. He gives glimpses into their homes, shows stretches of their lives, tells how the whole business affects them. And this part of his story is in startling contrast to the first part.

Where everything in the first part bespeaks admiration, the second part is pitched in a different key. Workers complain of uncertainty; at any time a man is apt to find himself out of a job. The work is hard and exhausting. And always there is the cry for speed, speed, so that a worker goes home at night fagged out, unable to do anything with his leisure. There is no security, there is no contentment. A man is always under a strain.

Now it is possible, of course, that the workers Mr. Wilson talked with were unusual specimens. Manufacturers of automobiles will undoubtedly protest that working conditions in their plants are constantly being improved, are better than the average, are as humane as is possible under the circumstances. But that is not the point.

The point is that a man of liberal outlook, visiting a huge American factory, has unreserved admiration for the purely mechanical side of things but has grave doubts where the human side is involved. Our machines, in other words, are nearly perfect; conditions for the men who serve the machines, on the other hand, are very far from perfection.

The development in these parallel fields has not been even. We are suffering badly from this unevenness today. During the next few years we shall discover that this is a problem of major importance.

An Expert Dirt Road Grader

ONE of the most expert dirt road graders is a county man who operates on the dirt road leading from State Trunk Highway No. 19 to the peninsula jutting between North Round and North Long lakes. He permits the original hard pan to remain and treats any developing ruts with the most capable results. The various undulations in the road are permitted to remain, for to remove them would cut through the hard pan and expose a possible deep layer of common soft soil or sand.

Summer visitors from various states have looked at this stretch of road, have even taken pictures of the same and declared it one of the finest kept dirt roads in this or many other states.

The crown is kept at just the right height, the sides are properly sloped, the ditches are kept clear.

Neighborliness

IT is gratifying in more ways than one to live in the average small town or in the country because of the fine neighborliness always manifested. Where every one knows everybody else by the first name, is interested in the small happenings, and is not too busy to aid when misfortune strikes some neighbor in the block or community or section, it brings peace and contentment to all.

How different from the large city where one flat dweller oftentimes does not even know the name of his next door neighbor, and for that matter does not care to know, either. Such a state of affairs makes the average family sometimes very lonely in the largest city.

Small town ways may not be like those of a large city, but they carry a lot of comfort and goodwill and make life worth living.

Manufacturing Statistics

MORE than 4,300 manufacturing establishments in the state of Minnesota, employing more than 120,000 persons, produced approximately $1,171,710,384 worth of goods during 1930, the United States Bureau of the Census has announced.

The census of manufacture covers printing and publishing establishments and all custom work.

In Crow Wing county there were 25 manufacturing establishments of all kinds which employed 1,431 wage earners (average for the year) and made products valued at $9,611,694.

In value of manufactured products in cities, Minneapolis led with $361,075,199; St. Paul was next with $206,918,164; Duluth, $58,903,568; Mankato, $9,642,227; St. Cloud, $7,780,148; Faribault, $5,649,338; Rochester, $3,073,756; Hibbing, $640,237.

Cleaning Up and Painting Up

BRAINERD is achieving a real worth while record in painting up and cleaning up. A walk or drive about the city will convince any one of this fact.

Houses are being repainted. Yards are being cleaned up. Alleys and streets are growing as neat as a pin. Money is being spent on improving lawns, planting trees, etc. Gardens are being planted.

On all sides one witnesses this idea being exemplified, of making Brainerd a spotless town, inviting alike to residents and visitors.

A PRIZE of $50 for the best original sentimental or whimsical song about the University of Minnesota has been announced by Earle G. Killeen, professor of music. According to Killeen, Minnesota needs more songs which can be sung by small groups at informal gatherings.

Lost Ten Dollar Bill Found

By RUTH DAVIS SARGENT

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service.)

HE GAVE it to her that morning with quite a bit of gusto. It was such a lot of money, all together, to hand to anybody. Stella flushed with pride as she slipped it in her worn pocketbook.

"Well, my girl," Bill had said, "I guess now you and the young ones'll be getting some of those things you've been telling me you needed."

"Oh, Bill, honey," Stella said. "Isn't it wonderful after these four long weeks with you wearing out shoe leather trying to find a job, to have finally gotten placed, and to be giving me ten dollars to fix up the kiddies and ourselves?"

"Don't forget yourself, Stella," Bill admonished her. "If you see some little thing you want, buy it." And then, slowly, "but go easy with it, old girl. I don't need to tell you that, I know. But ten dollars is a lot of money to-day. Buy the things we really need."

"I'll hang on to it till I see just the right things, Bill dear," she promised, kissing him good-by at the door.

Stella's work went quickly that morning. She whistled a little tune as she did the dishes. It had been so long since they had had money. The kiddies were a little ragged and worn in their last year's clothes. And Bill, the things he needed, and herself, too. Well, she'd buy some of them this fine morning. She'd surprise Bill to-night with just what that ten dollars could do.

It didn't seem possible on that early fall day that tragedy could lurk around Stella, when she felt so happy and secure with that carefully folded bill in her purse. But it struck her forcibly as she stood beside the stocking counter in Blakeley's big store, about to pay for some socks, her first purchase for Bill. The ten dollars was not in her pocketbook. Frankly, she searched the shabby envelope she carried, discovered the hole in the inner pocket where she had tucked the bill, retraced her steps anxiously to the very door of the store. But the ten dollars was gone.

She thought her heart would break as she stepped into the busy street. Bill's hard-earned ten dollars gone! How could she have been so careless? Why hadn't she noticed that hole in the pocketbook before she had placed the precious bill within it?

She paused a moment before the entrance of the great Hotel Graydon, leaning against a pillar for support. The world had gone dizzy and black before her eyes.

A car, large and shining, drove up before the Graydon, a chauffeur at the wheel. A lady, beautifully gowned and middle-aged, came down the Graydon steps to enter it. Blindly, Stella moved on. She must not make a display of herself on the public street. Then something brushed her elbow. She turned and found it, the hand of the woman who had come down the hotel steps.

"Is something the matter?" the woman asked kindly. "You looked as if you were about to fall. Are you faint?"

"Thank you; no," Stella spoke bravely, but there was no mistaking the tears in her eyes.

"Won't you tell me what's troubling you?" the woman urged. "I can see you are bothered by something. Perhaps, it might help you if you knew I had a daughter once, a girl who would be about your age today. I lost her."

The sympathy Stella saw in every line of the sweetly saddened face regarding her was exactly what she needed.

"Oh, I shouldn't tell you this," she began. "I don't even know you. But it's nearly killing me. This morning my husband, Bill, oh, you can't guess how good he is to me, gave me ten dollars to buy things for the babies and myself. He worked so hard for it. And now, well, I don't know how. But I've lost it! And it was all Bill had to give. And I've lost it!"

Tears poured unrestrainedly down Stella's cheeks. It seemed so even more monstrous, now that she had said it, that she had lost that ten dollars. Then she was surprised by a light in the woman's eyes.

"Do you know, my dear," the woman was saying excitedly, fumbling in her own beaded purse. "It's the most curious thing, but Jason, he's my chauffeur, found this ten-dollar bill in front of one of the large stores. I think it was—er—"

"Blakeley's?" Stella asked eagerly.

"Yes, Blakeley's," the woman went on. "and, my dear, fancy finding you just after you'd lost it!"

"Why, how wonderful," Stella exclaimed. "To have you find me right after I'd lost it," she echoed like a child.

"Well, run do your errands, my dear!" The woman smiled and gave her a kindly, maternal push.

And it wasn't until after the woman had departed in her great car, and Stella was on her way rejoicing with the ten-dollar bill held close in her hand, that it dawned upon her that she wasn't clasping the same ten-dollar bill at all with which she had started from home. This one was new and fresh. The other had been overworked and crumpled. But the woman and her car were gone. Stella had no idea who she was. And she still had ten dollars with which to buy things for the babies. Stella's heart gave a great bound of felicity. What a good old world it was after all!

NEW RECORDS FOR AMATEUR BOXING MADE AT CHICAGO

INTERNATIONAL MEET BETWEEN U. S. AND FRANCE

GOLDEN GLOVE WINNERS, CHICAGO AND NEW YORK, DEFEAT FRENCH CHAMPIONS

SCORE IS 5 MATCHES TO 3, CROWD OF OVER 40,000 SEES THE SHOW

Chicago, May 13.—(U.P.)—New records for amateur boxing existed today after the first international tournament between the United States and France last night in Soldier Field.

The Golden Gloves' winners from Chicago and New York defeated the amateur champions of France, five matches to three, before a crowd of more than 40,000. The gate receipts were about $67,000.

Both of these marks are far beyond the previous high figures for amateur boxing.

All of the bouts were of three rounds duration and were decided by decisions. At least three of the Frenchmen were on the verge of knockouts several times, but refused to quit under fire.

The results:

Marcel Ensaulet defeated Scotty Sylvano, Chicago high school football player.

Fernand Laudrin, an aviator at Le Bourget field, defeated Yustin Struts, New York University heavyweight.

Leo Roadak, Chicago flyweight, outpointed Andre Perrier.

Nick Scialaba, Chicago bantamweight, defeated Henri Bruyere.

Don Gonzales, Cleveland featherweight, won over Gabriel Lerat.

Phil Dardell, Brooklyn, N. Y., welterweight, won over Jacques Delahayes.

Jack Kranz, Gary, Ill., light heavyweight, defeated Alexander Elias.

Freddy Caserio of Chicago lost a decision to Jean Zigan.

New York, May 13.—The best of Italy's amateur boxers, holders of the Olympic title and unbeaten in 11 international conflicts, meet a team of United States amateurs at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Needed Help!

"Heavens!" exclaimed the preacher, "what's the idea of that stream of profanity?"

"Well," replied the tough little cad, "after a shot like that awful one you just made somebody had to cuss, and I know you didn't dare to do it yourself."

A Regular Devil

A bashful youth had been presented to a flapper and for ten minutes he sat speechless, growing redder and more embarrassed.

At length the girl said, sweetly, "And now let us talk of something else!"—Hummel, Hamburg.

Had Reasoned It Out

"What makes you think she doesn't like you?"

"She told me she thought there was a fool in every family."

"Well, what of that?"

"I had told her a moment before that I was an only child."

Loading It!

Marjorie—"You'd better not call any more, Jimmy. I'm afraid something is going to happen!"

Jimmy—"What?"

Marjorie—"Oh, nothing. Only I saw papa putting lead in his wooden leg last night."

WHAT MISSILE?

Mrs. Joax—Here's an account of a mysterious disappearance. A woman misses her husband.

Mr. Joax—What did she throw at him?

Apparently Placid Stream

The river flowing on its way now bids our cares redoubled. The waterpower it may display can cause all kinds of trouble.

Not in the Budget

SPEARING ALLOWED ONLY TWO MONTHS

INSTRUCTIONS REGARDING LAW RECEIVED BY CARDIE FROM GAME COMMISSIONER

Spearing is tabooed, except through the ice between December 1 and February 1 inclusive, according to a 1931 amendment to the Minnesota Game Laws by the Minnesota legislature, W. D. Stewart, game and fish commissioner, explained in a letter received by Game Warden A. P. Cardie.

Instructions important to fishermen are contained in Mr. Stewart's letter, reprinted in full as follows:

We have received a number of inquiries recently in regard to the use of artificial lights in spearing fish. Apparently there has been considerable misunderstanding of the law, due to the fact that while Mason's Minnesota Statutes of 1927, Section 5499, was amended by Laws 1929, Chapter 417, so as to absolutely prohibit the use of artificial lights in taking fish of any kind in any manner, at the same time the already existing provisions of sections 5568 and 5574, permitting the use of artificial lights in spearing fish in certain cases, were left on the statute books.

The recent legislature has now remedied the difficulty by Chapter 323, Laws 1931, approved April 24, 1931. In this connection it should be noted that the 1931 amendment limits the spearing of fish to spearing through the ice between December 1 and February 1, following, both inclusive.

Except as to bullheads in certain waters in Cass and Itasca counties, governed by Laws 1927, Chapter 322, as amended by Laws 1929, Chapter 315, the spearing of fish at any other time is now unlawful and it is also unlawful to spear fish at any time in open water, even during the time when spearing through the ice is permitted.

All game wardens are hereby notified to issue instructions in accordance with the foregoing so that there may be no further confusion in regard to the operation of the laws in question. The law is now in effect but inasmuch as the public in general is probably not aware of it, discretion in the matter of enforcing this new law must be used. Ignorance of this new law is not an excuse after a reasonable time after its enactment.

Her Revenge

During a discussion of the life of George Washington, to which six-year-old Jeanne was listening, some one mentioned that George had been a gay young blade in his youth; that he was in love with another girl when he married Martha. Jeanne was indignant to hear this, and said: "Well! Believe me, we'll not put out any flags at our house for him again."

June 25—Open, Byes.

Thompson Oils have a big margin in runs scored, having scored 53 runs against 15 for opponents. Pennys are next with 21 runs against 9 for their opponents. Pennys to date are undefeated and Thompson Oils are next with three wins and one defeat. These two teams will meet tonight at the N. P. grounds at 6:15 P. M. This should be a good game as both teams are fighting for the top.

The $ock Lure of $ize

By HARDIN BURNLEY

ENORMOUSLY big pugilists, inferior though they usually are to first-class 190-pounders, still make a most powerful appeal to public imagination. Whether they can fight well or not, Primo unquestionably is the most colorful ring personality since Dempsey was in his prime. No wonder many are sure that he and Sharkey will outdraw the Schmeling-Strubling show this summer.

That idea is perfectly plausible. Most fans rate Sharkey as the best heavy in the world and it's human nature to want to see Carnera's 260-odd pounds bounding off the canvas or plunging after the smart Jack with cave-man fury.

From expert angles the match looks one-sided indeed with the mature and masterly American almost a "sure thing" to riddle the much bigger but green Italian giant. However, in fan imagination there's always the possibility of Primo going berserk, as Firpo did against Dempsey, and that would provide a classic of clout indeed.

Campolo's status should be determined definitely when he clashes with the wizardly Tommy Loughran in a Garden 10-rounder at New York City this Friday night. It's a tough spot for the tall Argentine who seems to have only a lucky-punch chance of whipping the Philadelphia phantom.

It might be better had Campolo been matched with Carnera. However, if the former makes a fair showing against Loughran and Primo gives Sharkey a real rub, the foreign giants should draw well in an open-air show next fall. But both are facing fierce tests of their ability at present.

NEW GOLF HAZARD FACES EARLY RISERS AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, May 13.—(U.P.)—A new golf hazard is facing early risers who patronize the municipal golf course in Griffith park, Superintendent J. M. Young said today.

Deer have been coming down from the park hills to graze along the fairways, Young reported, and the fact that they do not readily respond to a "Fore!" have held up many foursomes.

Young claimed the dry weather and lack of food for the sudden appearance of the animals on the golf course. He is searching for some benefactor to provide hay for his charges.

INTERNATIONAL MEET BETWEEN U. S. AND FRANCE

GOLDEN GLOVE WINNERS, CHICAGO AND NEW YORK, DEFEAT FRENCH CHAMPIONS

SCORE IS 5 MATCHES TO 3, CROWD OF OVER 40,000 SEES THE SHOW

Chicago, May 13.—(U.P.)—New records for amateur boxing existed today after the first international tournament between the United States and France last night in Soldier Field.

The Golden Gloves' winners from Chicago and New York defeated the amateur champions of France, five matches to three, before a crowd of more than 40,000. The gate receipts were about $67,000.

Both of these marks are far beyond the previous high figures for amateur boxing.

All of the bouts were of three rounds duration and were decided by decisions. At least three of the Frenchmen were on the verge of knockouts several times, but refused to quit under fire.

The results: Marcel Esnault defeated Scotty Sylvano, Chicago high school football player.

Fernand Laudrin, an aviator at Le Bourget field, defeated Yustin Sirutis, New York University heavyweight.

Leo Roadak, Chicago flyweight, outpointed Andre Perrier.

Nick Scialaba, Chicago bantamweight, defeated Henri Bruyere.

Don Gonzales, Cleveland featherweight, won over Gabriel Lerat.

Phil Dardell, Brooklyn, N. Y., welterweight, won over Jacques DeLahayes.

Jack Kranz, Gary, Ill., light heavyweight, defeated Alexander Elyas.

Freddy Caserio of Chicago lost a decision to Jean Zigan.

New York, May 13.—The best of Italy's amateur boxers, holders of the Olympic title and unbeaten in 11 international conflicts, meet a team of United States amateurs at Madison Square Garden tonight.

SPEARING ALLOWED ONLY TWO MONTHS

INSTRUCTIONS REGARDING LAW RECEIVED BY CARDLE FROM GAME COMMISSIONER

Spearing is tabooed, except through the ice between December 1 and February 1 inclusive, according to a 1931 amendment to the Minnesota Game Laws by the Minnesota legislature, W. D. Stewart, game and fish commissioner, explained in a letter received by Game Warden A. P. Cardle.

Instructions important to fishermen are contained in Mr. Stewart's letter, reprinted in full as follows:

We have received a number of inquiries recently in regard to the use of artificial lights in spearing fish. Apparently there has been considerable misunderstanding of the law, due to the fact that while the Minnesota Statutes of 1927, Section 5499, was amended by Laws 1929, Chapter 417, so as to absolutely prohibit the use of artificial lights in taking fish of any kind in any manner, at the same time the already existing provisions of sections 5568 and 5574, permitting the use of artificial lights in spearing fish in certain cases, were left on the statute books.

The recent legislature has now remedied the difficulty by Chapter 323, Laws 1931, approved April 24, 1931. In this connection it should be noted that the 1931 amendment limits the spearing of fish to spearing through the ice between December 1 and February 1, following, both inclusive.

Except as to bullheads in certain waters in Cass and Itasca counties, governed by Laws 1927, Chapter 322, as amended by Laws 1929, Chapter 315, the spearing of fish at any other time is now unlawful and it is also unlawful to spear fish at any time in open water, even during the time when spearing through the ice is permitted.

All game wardens are hereby notified to issue instructions in accordance with the foregoing so that there may be no further confusion in regard to the operation of the laws in question. The law is now in effect but inasmuch as the public in general is probably not aware of it, discretion in the matter of enforcing this new law must be used. Ignorance of this new law is not an excuse after a reasonable time after its enactment.

EARLY SEASON SLUMP SEEMS NOW OVERCOME

MARGIN OVER SECOND PLACE YANKEES IS ONLY FEW PERCENTAGE POINTS

ENOUGH TO INDICATE A'S FAR FROM THROUGH AS CHAMPIONSHIP CONTENDERS

By LEO H. PETERSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, May 13.—The Philadelphia Athletics, whose early season slump caused fear that the world champions of 1929 and 1930 had finally cracked, were back in their familiar position of first place in the American League today.

Although their margin over the second place New York Yankees is only a few percentage points, it is enough to indicate that the Athletics are far from through as championship contenders.

It has been a slow and gradual rise for Connie Mack's men ever since they looked so helpless in dropping three contests of their four-game series with the Washington Senators to start off the 1931 campaign. The reason for the Athletics' poor showing then was apparent—the "big five" was clicking.

Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw were slow to round into form, Jimmy Fox was injured, Mickey Cochrane had lost his pepper behind the plate and was falling down in his hitting and Al Simmons was just another batter until two weeks ago.

Grove, Fox, Simmons and Cochrane combined yesterday to elevate Philadelphia to the top of the league by trimming Chicago, 5 to 2. Grove allowed but four hits, Simmons hit his fifth home run of the year, Fox got three singles, driving in two runs and Cochrane was his old self behind the plate.

Only one other American League game was played, the Detroit Tigers besting the Boston Red Sox, 2 to 0.

Three National League contests were called off—St. Louis-Philadelphia, Brooklyn-Pittsburgh and New York-Chicago.

In the only games played in the senior circuit, the Boston Braves and Cincinnati Reds broke even in a double header, the Braves winning the first 4 to 2 and the Reds the second, 3 to 2.

The Sock Lure of $ize

By HARDIN BURNLEY

ENORMOUSLY big pugilists, inferior though they usually are to first-class 190-pounders, still make a most powerful appeal to public imagination. When the giants show any ability at all, linked with some effective publicity, they pack the fans in wherever fight cards draw.

Of course, able exploitation is vital to their drawing power. That explains the appeal difference between a Carnera and a Campolo. Primo, denounced by practically all the ring experts, is the biggest attraction in fistiana; Campolo, boosted by the organized talent of Madison Square Garden, was so poor a card that they had to call off his bout with Jack Sharkey last fall. Jose Santa, Portuguese giant, is floundering about the sticks. England indirectly hails giant. However, in fan imagination there's always the possibility of Primo going berserk, as Firpo did against Dempsey and that would provide a classic of clout indeed.

Campolo's status should be determined definitely when he clashes with the wizardly Tommy Loughran in a Garden 10-round at New York City this Friday night. It's a tough spot for the tall Argentine who seems to have only a lucky-punch chance of whipping the Philadelphia phantom.

THE RIGHT AS BUICK BUILDS IT

Combining Colors Milady's Big Task

Proper Contrast of Shades Will Produce Satisfactory Effect.

The keenest competition the lovely colors of springtime will experience is the vogue which Vionnet launched when she showed an abundance of white. The white collar, the white fur scarf and the white bouquet perched atop the spring hat all contribute to popularizing the showing of white, which was prominent at Palm Beach, says a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star.

With this in mind the choice of the spring colors becomes simpler for the woman who has to keep thrift in mind when she is buying. Perhaps nothing contributes more to good dressing than the fact that a woman must give her mind to her shopping and avoid mistakes. The present vogue for contrasting colors and combining colors will produce splendid effects when the right combination is used.

Navy blue with white is very good and touched with a bit of red becomes lovely. The brighter enamel blues wit, the palest possible greens and the flesh pinks have their own way of being attractive and the deep browns with the range of yellows are most attractive for blonds or brunettes.

Suppose one is doing one's best on a budget. The choice of a pretty navy blue suit with a short simple jacket which may become, when worn with a lace or other elaborate blouse, a very dressy costume for tea or dinner at the club, is an indispensable choice. Worn with a print blouse of a sheer linen or cotton it will have a practical value all its own. A lovely print dress may have a jacket of plain fabric or a pretty little cape of the printed material.

One Piece Dress Popular.

Another thrift costume is the one piece black crepe dress which has a pleated skirt and is worn with a plain short jacket to make it a suit for daytime wear. A short cape coming to the waistline is banded with white fur, which makes it acceptable for the occasions when a more elaborate dress is needed. The plaid skirt with its heavy blue jacket and also a red one is one way the coed has of keeping herself looking smart by a change of costume.

One of my correspondents writes this inquiry: "What about prints for summer? I hear Chanel says prints are not to be popular." Now, my dears, did you not also read that Chanel has a factory for making jerseys and tweeds? It is to the interest of Chanel to popularize the fabrics she manufactures, so do not worry about prints. There are a score of other designers who say that prints are good and the summer of 1931 will see many and beautiful prints along with the eyeliner embroideries, batiste linens, chiffons, organdies, and silks of every weave.

A suit shown by Lelong is black cotton crepe and is worn with a pale pink blouse of sheer silk, the jacket embroidered with eyelets just back of the scalloped edge. It is a one-button jacket, very tight at the waistline, the tail of the jacket making it longer in the back than in the front.

A java beige jacket is worn over a java brown skirt with a brown fur scarf of galyak which is tied in Ascot fashion. The crepe woolen suits in plain colors have a bright scarf of stripes or a long bow of printed silk.

The light top idea in suits and frocks has gained such headway in this season of contrasts that it is shown by the best houses for evening wear. The contrast is worked out even to contrasting shoulder straps, petticoats and wide bands which are posed beneath sheer fabrics. The light top dress makes it possible to wear a jacket above and thereby a one-piece dress and a jacket take the place of a blouse and a skirt.

The girl who gets a lightweight woolen spring coat may be buying for a long season, for many of the summer costumes have long woolen coats in brown, navy or red or whatever color you like best. They are worn with white linen frocks or silk dresses with a belt the color of the coat, shoes and hat the color of the coat. Much seaming appears on these dresses.

Use Neckline Decoration.

This is the season of handwork, fagotting, the whipped on edge of lace, the exquisite hemstitching; all appear about the necklines of spring dresses. To neglect this refined trim is to overlook one of the touches which marks the well dressed woman. All-over "cut out" work and hand embroidery is with us in these identical frocks with their especial appeal. One very chic floral print in pale blue and white has a sheer linen collar of white with hand embroidered edge of blue.

The Sunday night dress is softer and sweeter as the days go by, now in lace chiffon, now in silk and satin. It is all that the tea gown once was for elaboration and the afternoon dress for lines.

The skirt length again comes to the mind of the shopper. Many of the new evening dresses are far enough from the floor to suggest dancing without the slightest chance of catching the foot in the hemline. Some are as much as two or four inches from the floor and a decided up-in-the-front length is a concession to the tendency to keep the summer dress from sweeping the floor.

The spring bride is choosing white satin for her wedding gown. The princess line prevails with the bolero jacket or a little cape to give it a 1931 vintage. The train is often a part of the skirt after the newest Worth model. Some of these white satin gowns are of the blush pink or orchid tint which is so faint that it is hardly more than a delicate sheen. When the tinted shade is chosen the tulle veil is of the same tint. The more elaborate designed wedding gown is of white satin, deep pearls embellishing the skirt to knee length; the narrow belt is embroidered in seed pearls as is the square neckline. The bridesmaid's dresses are in stiffened lace in pastel shades with a peplum set on at the low hipline.

One of the prettiest of going away costumes for the bride is the redingote, for instance, a coat of warm gray woolen material with a dress of matching gray crepe combined with a top of cherry red crepe. The suits may have extra capes lined with red and tied with long red crepe streamers which are worn in a bow under the ear or the chine as the bride wills.

Flowers Under Hat Brims.

One sees extremely glossy straw hats and very dull ones, and sometimes they are used together. One sees an occasional straw brim mounted on a felt or fabric crown. Any number of spring hats have a flower tucked under their brim, sometimes several. It is true that more often than not there is no brim, for tiny little caps have captured the younger set who, of course, wear them petulantly far back. Brims are sure to arrive, however, when high coat collars are discarded.

Halo hats are widely advertised. This means that halos are worn at a jaunty angle. Profile hats are more or less the same thing—they provide an uninterrupted view of the left profile against a wide, right brim, showing the coiffure at the left side as well.

The Watteau silhouette—another tip-tilted arrangement—has many devotees. Crowns remain very shallow and brims are entirely ignored in some instances, while in others they provide the talking point of the hat.

Ribbons, flowers, feathers and ornaments have all returned, but in decidedly homeopathic doses and with the occasional exception of a perky feather are flattened against the hat. Small quills are sometimes allowed to jut up or outward. Gardenias are the most approved flower and are applied singly or in wreath effects, clusters or sprays.

For a gay note of contrast, to accent a slender waistline or for other pleasant duty sashes are finding themselves tied about the freshest spring frocks.

Mother and 3 Small Children Found Dead in Gas Filled Room

Detroit, Mich., May 13.—(AP)—A mother and her three small children were found dead in the gas filled kitchen of their home here this afternoon. The throats of all three had been slashed. Early investigation by police failed to reveal the instrument used. Death had occurred a few hours before the bodies were found.

Police said they believed the woman was Mrs. John Ellis, about 32 years old. The children were two boys about six and two years old, and a girl about four.

All the Tea Gown Loveliness to Which Women Aspire Is Ensnared in the Shimmering Folds of the Satin and Lace Frock in Seashell Pink. Its Sleeves Add the Graceful Dignity of a Wedding Costume. More Dashing If Not So Dignified Is the Rustling Black Taffeta With Pleated Ruffles and Great Bows of Turquoise Blue Velvet for Accent.

Combining Colors Milady's Big Task

Proper Contrast of Shades Will Produce Satisfactory Effect.

The keenest competition the lovely colors of springtime will experience is the vogue which Vionnet launched when she showed an abundance of white. The white collar, the white fur scarf and the white bouquet perched atop the spring hat all contribute to popularizing the showing of white, which was prominent at Palm Beach, says a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star.

With this in mind the choice of the spring colors becomes simpler for the woman who has to keep thrift in mind when she is buying. Perhaps nothing contributes more to good dressing than the fact that a woman must give her mind to her shopping and avoid mistakes. The present vogue for contrasting colors and combining colors will produce splendid effects when the right combination is used.

Navy blue with white is very good and touched with a bit of red becomes lovely. The brighter enamel blues with the palest possible greens and the flesh pinks have their own way of being attractive and the deep browns with the range of yellows are most attractive for blonds or brunettes.

Suppose one is doing one's best on a budget. The choice of a pretty navy blue suit with a short simple jacket which may become, when worn with a lace or other elaborate blouse, a very dressy costume for tea or dinner at the club, is an indispensable choice. Worn with a print blouse of a sheer linen or cotton it will have a practical value all its own. A lovely print dress may have a jacket of plain fabric or a pretty little cape of the printed material.

One Piece Dress Popular.

Another thrifty costume is the one piece black crepe dress which has a pleated skirt and is worn with a plain short jacket to make it a suit for daytime wear. A short cape coming to the waistline is handy with white fur, which makes it acceptable for the occasions when a more elaborate dress is needed. The plaid skirt with its heavy blue jacket and also a red one is one way the coed has of keeping herself looking smart by a change of costume.

One of my correspondents writes this inquiry: "What about prints for summer? I hear Chanel says prints are not to be popular." Now, my dears, did you not also read that Chanel has a factory for making jerseys and sweaters? It is to the interest of Chanel to popularize the fabrics she manufactures, so do not worry about prints. There are a score of other designers who say that prints are good and the summer of 1931 will see many and beautiful prints along with the eyelet embroideries, batiste linens, chiffons, organdies, and silks of every weave.

A suit shown by Lelong is black cotton crepe and is worn with a pale pink blouse of sheer silk, the jacket embroidered with eyelets just back of the scalloped edge. It is a one-button jacket, very tight at the waistline, the tail of the jacket making it longer in the back than in the front.

A java beige jacket is worn over a java brown skirt with a brown fur scarf of galyak which is tied in Ascot fashion. The crepe woolen suits in plain colors have a bright scarf of stripes or a long bow of printed silk.

The light top idea in suits and frocks has gained such headway in this season of contrasts that it is shown by the best houses for evening wear. The contrast is worked out even to contrasting shoulder straps, petticoats and wide bands which are posed beneath sheer fabrics. The light top dress makes it possible to wear a jacket above and thereby a one-piece dress and a jacket take the place of a blouse and a skirt.

The girl who gets a lightweight woolen spring coat may be buying for a long season, for many of the summer costumes have long woolen coats in brown, navy or red or whatever color you like best. They are worn with white linen frocks or silk dresses with a belt the color of the coat, shoes and hat the color of the coat. Much seaming appears on these dresses.

Use Neckline Decoration.

This is the season of handwork, fagotting, the whipped on edge of lace, the exquisite hemstitching; all appear about the necklines of spring dresses. To neglect this refined trim is to overlook one of the touches which marks the well dressed woman. All-over "cut out" work and hand embroidery is with us in these identical frocks with their special uniqueness. One very chic floral print in pale blue and white has a sheer linen collar of white with hand embroidered edge of blue.

The Sunday night dress is softer and sweeter as the days go by, now in lace chiffon, now in silk and satin. It is all that the tea gown once was for elaboration and the afternoon dress for lines.

The skirt length again comes to the mind of the shopper. Many of the new evening dresses are far enough from the floor to suggest dancing without the slightest chance of catching the foot in the hemline. Some are as much as two or four inches from the floor and a decided up-in-the-front length is a concession to the tendency to keep the summer dress from sweeping the floor.

The spring bride is choosing white satin for her wedding gown. The princess line prevails with the bolero jacket or a little cape to give it a 1931 vintage. The train is often a part of the skirt after the newest Worth model. Some of these white satin gowns are of the blush pink or orchid tint which is so faint that it is hardly more than a delicate sheen. When the tinted shade is chosen the tulle veil is of the same tint. The more elaborate designed wedding gown is of white satin, seed pearls embroidering the skirt to knee length; the narrow belt is embroidered in seed pearls as is the square neckline. The bridesmaid's dresses are in stiffened lace in pastel shades with a peplum set on at the low hipline.

One of the prettiest of going away costumes for the bride is the redingote, for instance, a coat of warm gray woolen material with a dress of matching gray crepe combined with a top of cherry red crepe. The suits may have extra capes lined with red and tied with long red crepe streamers which are worn in a bow under the ear or the chine as the bride wills.

Flowers Under Hat Brims.

One sees extremely glossy straw hats and very dull ones, and sometimes they are used together. One sees an occasional straw brim mounted on a felt or fabric crown. Any number of spring hats have a flower tucked under their brim, sometimes several. It is true that more often than not there is no brim, for tiny little caps have captured the younger set who, of course, wear them perilously far back. Brims are sure to arrive, however, when high coat collars are discarded.

Halo hats are widely advertised. This means that halos are worn at a jaunty angle. Profile hats are more or less the same thing—they provide an uninterrupted view of the left profile against a wide, right brim, showing the coiffure at the left side as well.

The Watteau silhouette—another tip-tilted arrangement—has many devotees. Crowns remain very shallow and brims are entirely ignored in some instances, while in others they provide the talking point of the hat.

Ribbons, flowers, feathers and ornaments have all returned, but in decidedly homeopathic doses and with the occasional exception of a perky feather are flattened against the hat. Small quills are sometimes allowed to jut up or outward. Gardenias are the most approved flower and are applied singly or in wreath effects, clusters or sprays.

For a gay note of contrast, to accent a slender waistline or for other pleasant tied sashes are finding themselves tied about the freshest spring frocks.

ROTARY OBSERVES ITS 10TH BIRTHDAY

A. C. Ebert in Charge of Program, Calls on Charter Members for Short Talks Tuesday

H. F. MICHAEL FIRST PRESIDENT

Original Charter List of 20 Members, First Meeting May 9, 1921, Charter Presented July 8

The Brainerd Rotary club on Tuesday observed its 10th birthday. The program was in charge of A. C. Ebert, one of the charter members of the club. Secretary G. W. Chadbourne read the minutes of the first meeting held May 9, 1921 at the Ransford hotel and also the important meeting at Grand View Lodge when the club received its charter.

The original charter list contained 20 members of whom 10 are still with the club. Among the latter seven spoke. C. N. Erickson gave interesting reminiscences. D. E. Whitney said the club had developed into an organization the members could be proud of. City Engineer R. T. Campbell recalled one of the joyous occasions was the club attendance at the district meeting held in Duluth. S. R. Adair mentioned outstanding events during organization. W. C. Cobb referred to the early work of H. F. Michael and paid a tribute to the ten presidents of the local club. Ernest Butler referred to the work of Mr. Michael stressing knowledge of Rotary principles and ethics. A. C. Ebert told of experiences in the early days.

The first officers of the club were President H. F. Michael, Secretary Walter F. Wieland, Vice President Dr. R. A. Beise and Treasurer A. J. Hayes.

The charter members were H. F. Michael, Walter F. Wieland, Dr. Karl H. Hoorn, A. J. Hayes, S. R. Adair, Ernest Butler, D. E. Whitney, Will Wagner, W. E. Haydon, Theodore Brusegaard, R. T. Campbell, W. C. Cobb, A. C. Ebert, C. N. Erickson, Rev. E. A. Cook, John F. Woodhead, Franz Anderson, Dr. R. A. Beise, O. A. Peterson, George Tracy.

The first president was H. F. Michael and Secretary Walter F. Wieland. In 1922 President Walter F. Wieland, Secretary Theodore Brusegaard. In 1923, President Dr. R. A. Beise, Secretary Louis Tanner. In 1924, President W. H. Gemmell, Secretary C. W. Hoffman. In 1925, President John F. Woodhead, Secretary Wm. A. Spencer. In 1926, President William V. Turcotte, Secretary Wm. A. Spencer. In 1927, President Wm. A. Spencer, Secretary G. W. Chadbourne. In 1928, President Dr. George H. Ribbel, Secretary G. W. Chadbourne. In 1929, President S. R. Adair, Secretary G. W. Chadbourne. In 1930, President Hal Day, Secretary G. W. Chadbourne. In 1931, President Carl Zapffe, Secretary Leigh Slipp.

Judge B. F. Wright of the district court was a guest of the club. Mention was made that the next meeting of the club would be at the Episcopal church, there to hear the new bishop coadjutor speak.

Licenses Now Delinquent; Dogs Caught in Drive Will be Exterminated After Wait

Lead by Louis Cameron, sanitary police, who will gain the cooperation of the city police department, a city wide drive will be instituted soon to force all dog owners to buy licenses or destroy their pets.

Mrs. E. T. Fleener, city clerk, stated to the Dispatch today that 134 licenses for dogs have been issued.

On the basis of 400 licenses issued last year it is apparent that many licenses are now delinquent as they became due on May 1.

All dogs not having licenses will be taken and unless called for in a few days will be destroyed. The police have the right to destroy any dog on just cause. Licenses are $2 for male and $3 for female.

Devotion to dogs and dogs to their masters have been told of in countless fascinating narratives. It was learned here that a city pauper was given money by a friend that he might pay the license for his dog which he prizes.

There was also reported to the Dispatch today that dislike of dogs has started the spreading of poisoned meat, particularly in Northeast Brainerd. Already two dogs have felt the effect of it.

SOLICITING FUNDS FOR ADVERTISING

Committees of Six Teams, Two Men Each, Making Canvass of Business Section of Brainerd

Six teams of the Chamber of Commerce, two men each, led by Frank N. Russell, chairman of the Tourist Committee, today started a two-days canvass of the business section of Brainerd to gain funds for a budget to advertise in many different mediums the lake and tourist recreation resources of this lake country.

On all sides one sees such campaigns in progress. Southwestern Minnesota recently completed an organization to advertise the 220 lakes they possess. The Brainerd district, on the other hand, has close to 700 lakes within easy driving distance of the city.

Minnesota is going to enjoy the greatest year in its history as a summer playground. More people are going to see America first and the lakes in particular, allowing this schedule to supersede an expensive trip to Europe.

Kane Addresses Pequot High

Raymond E. Kane, naval recruiter from Brainerd addressed the students at the Pequot high school Wednesday. The subject of his talk was opportunities in the navy.

Among other things, Mr. Kane said the U. "MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

"Bim" Martin, young newspaper reporter and his fiancée, Walter Vance, assistant police chief, are baffled by the murder of Baroness von Wiese at Eagle's Nest and the theft of her jewels. The outstanding suspects are the butler, who denies receiving a note from the Baroness, her maid with whom she quarreled, and Mary Frost, whose shawl was wrapped around the body. Mary left the party with her husband, Ted, returning alone, later, for the shawl. According to the maid, Laura Allan had borrowed it. Laura claims she saw Mary enter the garden wearing the shawl. Bim feels that Mary is shielding Ted who flirted with the Baroness. A stone from a man's ring is found in the garden. Carl Carey, New York reporter, arrives at Kingcliffe. "Bim" is attracted to him. His implications regarding Laura Allan prompt "Bim" to investigate. She learns that Laura entertained Bunny Baird late at night.

CHAPTER XXI.

As they loitered under the trees of River Road on the way home after the show Carl slipped his arm about her waist. She felt her cheeks grow hot in the darkness and was a little angry, a little dismayed, realizing that she liked it. She would, however, have stepped away from him with a curt protest had she not felt that this would make too much of a gesture which he evidently considered negligible.

Accordingly Bim ignored his arm.

Still when Carey stood close to her on the vine-shadowed veranda where Walter always kissed her good-night as a matter of course, she stepped back quickly, refusing his kiss. He looked puzzled for a moment and then amused.

"Miss Eighteen-twenty," he said teasingly. "Old fashioned child. Didn't know there were any more. Sweet baby."

"Thanks, big boy. You're sort of nice yourself."

"That makes it unanimous. But why all the stand-offishness?"

"It's just a habit."

"Bad things, habits. How's for breaking this one? Your uncle Carl is the best little habit breaker. You'd be surprised."

"Nope."

"Too bad, but a good reporter never gives up. See you tomorrow, baby."

Disturbing Dreams

Bim dreamed of Carl Carey that night—only in the dream she was in his arms while Walter Vance kept shouting angrily from some where "The Spanish Shawl!" She awakened with a vision of the shawl as it had looked wrapped about the Baroness with the dark stain running over ivory silk and bright flowers. Why, Bim wondered, had the Baroness been wearing the shawl when she was slain? Why had Laura Allan denied putting it on earlier in the evening? Why had Mary Frost been so reticent about it?

Perhaps, as Walter seemed to believe, the shawl figured in the murder mystery merely because it had happened to be easily accessible to anyone strolling through Eagle's Nest on the way to the garden.

Nevertheless it was because of the shawl that at least two pieces of information now were in the hands of the police; first, that Mary Frost had remained at Eagle's Nest after the other guests had gone and after everyone excepting the maid, Imogene, had thought her gone as well; second, that Laura Allan had paid a clandestine visit to the garden.

thermore, the prominence of the shawl in the case had given rise to the question of whether the Baroness von Wiese was slain in mistake for someone else.

Old Tom was glum at breakfast, shaking his head over a copy of the Banner. Bim raged a little because he had toned down her story somewhat; still he had allowed the scare-head to stand and her by-line, and this mollified her somewhat. She had visions of editors all over the country scrambling for copies of the Banner and saying to themselves, "Clever reporter, this Martin girl!"

Prejudiced Opinion

She left old Tom with his third cup of coffee and sought out Walter at the station house. He, too, was reading the Banner and admitted grudgingly that her account of the murder was fair.

"Better than the mess that fellow from New York wrote. He's a plain liar, that bird. Look at it!" Walter shoved a copy of the Planet at her.

Bim was forced to admit—to herself, however—that Carey had romanced a bit in doing his story; still he had not written anything not strictly true even though he had implied a lot.

"It's only the big town way of doing things, Wally, dear," she explained patiently. "He's really awfully clever."

"I noticed you thought so," Walter growled. "Like the movies, did you?"

She understood then that he was jealous and gave a little laugh in which there was the merest suggestion of gratified vanity. "And you such a sweet thing and all! Why the grouching, Mr. Chief?"

"Bim, I wish you'd cut this racket. A murder's no kind of a thing for a girl like you to mix herself up in. Let it go, sweetheart. After this—well, you heard what Reynolds said yesterday and he knows pretty well all that's going on. Been out Franklin Street lately? They're just finishing that little new cottage on the corner of Sixth. We could move in this time next month."

Bim laughed again though not quite so merrily. She had seen the cottage on Franklin Street and it appealed to her. A week ago, perhaps, she might have thought several times before she shrugged a slim shoulder and shook a pale head. But now . . . well, she had had a taste of her first big assignment. Bees Carried to the Blooms

Honey was used for sweetening by the ancients, as sugar was unknown at that time. The bees, which were kept in portable hives so that they might be carried on donkey-back into the honey-bearing pastures twice during the year, were owned by the Greeks and leased to bee keepers, usually native Egyptians.

Water on Farms

More than 500 gallons of water are used daily on the average American farm, according to federal and state estimates.

The DAIRY

CLEANLINESS IS OF IMPORTANCE

Quality of Product Determined by Handling.

A large amount of poor cream on the market could be avoided if more care was exercised in its production and handling. Milk as it comes from the cow is clean but it always picks up a few bacteria. The way in which the dairy man handles this milk from the time it is taken out of the dairy barn until it is delivered to the consumer determines the quality of the cream. Cleanliness should begin with the barn and the cows. A clean, properly drained yard, and a clean barn, from which the manure is removed daily, will do a great deal toward producing quality milk and cream. Clip the cows' flanks and udders and keep them clean. Remove milk from pails immediately after milking each cow and do not allow it to stand until milking is completed. Keep the can covered tightly. Milk with clean dry hands and use a small crock or covered pail in order to avoid off-flavor, seed, hay, dirt and disease after milking. If your pasture contains onions, garlic or ragweeds, it is better to take the cows out about six hours before milking them. One of the very important things is to keep cream cool. Cool warm cream before adding it to the supply can. Sell the cream often. Lastly, sterilize all utensils with clean boiling water or a chemical disinfectant. It is a mistake to expect chemical disinfectants to completely sterilize in a few minutes milk or cream containers which have not been properly scrubbed. A stiff brush is very effective in washing utensils.

Home Grinding of Feed Versus Custom Grinding

In many sections of the country farmers are purchasing their own grinding outfits and are no longer hauling grain to the grist mill and then back home, according to time immemorial custom. It has been stated that a good cow will eat an average of 2,000 pounds of grain per year. Perhaps half of this will be bran, oatmeal, gluten, etc.—material that does not require grinding. The amount of home-ground feed to grind for a 10-cow dairy, therefore, would be about 10,000 pounds yearly. Add 30 per cent for young stock, etc., and the farm requirement for grinding would be 13,000 pounds of grain yearly. With a five-horse power motor the time required for this grinding would be 20 minutes each week; for a 20-cow farm, 40 minutes weekly, and so on up the line. It would seem, therefore, that the time saved by home grinding would be an important item, especially when we consider that, with proper arrangements, the grinding could be done while the operator goes on with other chores. The cost of grinding at the custom mill is usually 10 cents per hundredweight, or $13 for a 10-cow farm and other sizes in proportion.

Eliminate All Reactors to Save Valuable Stock

No dairy farmer can afford to keep a herd infected with Bang disease (contagious abortion) and stand the loss in milk production, the loss of calves and have the other troubles which accompany the disease, states Dr. Robert Graham, University of Illinois veterinarian. There are veterinarians everywhere who are qualified to make necessary tests to weed out infected cows and determine whether the disease is prevalent in a herd. The diseased animals should be eliminated and sanitary practices used to prevent a recurrence, he points out.

Dairy Hints

Steel stanchions and stalls have proved themselves more economical than those of wooden construction. They are easier to keep sanitary and are far more durable.

While cream separators, to outside appearances, look the same as those of a few years ago, marked advances have been made in assuring easier running qualities and cleaner skimming under farm conditions.

Do not reduce grain feed for cows in the flush of production, even though prices paid for milk may be lower. It is better to weed out the poor cows in the herd and continue to feed the good ones up to production capacity. This practice reduces milk costs.

Subjecting for five minutes to temperature of 200 degrees or more will do a very good job of sterilizing milk equipment.

Feeding utensils must be kept very clean and sunning daily helps in keeping the calf well. Watch carefully for lice on calves.

Efficient dairy cows will return a profit on grain fed even when the pasture is good. A small quantity of summer grain keeps up the milk flow and builds up the cow for winter.

DUBIOUS RECOMMENDATION

While in Switzerland a traveler was about to make an ascent, when he thought he might as well institute some inquiries about the guide who was to accompany him.

"Is he a thoroughly skilled climber?" he asked his hotelkeeper.

"I should say so," was the reply. "He has lost two parties of tourists down the mountainside, and each time has come off without as much as a scratch himself."

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

"Bim" Martin, young newspaper reporter and her fiancé, Walter Vance, assistant police chief, are baffled by the murder of Baroness von Wiese at Eagle's Nest and the theft of her jewels. The outstanding suspects are the butler who denies receiving a note from the Baroness, her maid with whom she quarreled, and Mary Frost, whose shawl was wrapped around the body. Mary left the party with her husband, Ted, returning alone, later, for the shawl. According to the maid, Laura Allan had borrowed it. Laura claims she saw Mary enter the garden wearing the shawl. Bim feels that Mary is shielding Ted who flirted with the Baroness. A stone from a man's ring is found in the garden. Carl Carey, New York reporter, arrives at Kingcliffe. "Bim" is attracted to him. His implications regarding Laura Allan prompt "Bim" to investigate. She learns that Laura entertained Bunny Baird late at night.

CHAPTER XXI.

As they loitered under the trees of River Road on the way home after the show Carl slipped his arm about her waist. She felt her cheeks grow hot in the darkness and was a little angry, a little dismayed, realizing that she liked it. She would, however, have stepped away from him with a curt protest had she not felt that this would make too much of a gesture which he evidently considered negligible.

Accordingly Bim ignored his arm. Still when Carey stood close to her on the vine-shadowed veranda where Walter always kissed her good-night as a matter of course, she stepped back quickly, refusing his kiss. He looked puzzled for a moment and then amused.

"Miss Eighteen-twenty," he said teasingly, "Old fashioned child. Didn't know there were any more. Sweet baby."

"Thanks, big boy. You're sort of nice yourself."

"That makes it unanimous. But why all the stand-offishness?"

"It's just a habit."

"Bad things, habits. How's for breaking this one? Your uncle Carl is the best little habit breaker you'd be surprised."

"Nope."

"Too bad, but a good reporter never gives up. See you tomorrow, baby."

Disturbing Dreams

Bim dreamed of Carl Carey that night—only in the dream she was in his arms while Walter Vance kept shouting angrily from some where "The Spanish Shawl!" She awakened with a vision of the shawl as it had looked wrapped about the Baroness with the dark stain running over ivory silk and bright flowers. Why, Bim wondered, had the Baroness been wearing the shawl when she was slain? Why had Laura Allan denied putting it on earlier in the evening? Why had Mary Frost been so reticent about it?

Perhaps, as Walter seemed to believe, the shawl figured in the murder mystery merely because it had happened to be easily accessible to anyone strolling through Eagle's Nest on the way to the garden. Nevertheless it was because of the shawl that at least two pieces of information now were in the hands of the police; first, that Mary Frost had remained at Eagle's Nest after the other guests had gone and after everyone excepting the maid, Imogene, had thought her gone as well; second, that Laura Allan had paid a clandestine visit to the garden. Further...

As they loitered under the trees, he slipped his arm about her waist.

thermore, the prominence of the shawl in the case had given rise to the question of whether the Baroness von Wiese was slain in mistake for someone else.

Old Tom was glum at breakfast, shaking his head over a copy of the Banner. She left old Tom with his third cup of coffee and sought out Walter at the station house. He, too, was reading the Banner and admitted grudgingly that her account of the murder was fair.

"Better than the mess that fell from New York wrote. He's a plain liar, that bird. Look at it!" Walter shoved a copy of the Planet at her.

Bim was forced to admit—to herself, however—that Carey had flattered a bit in doing his story; still he had not written anything not strictly true even though he had implied a lot.

"It's only the big town way of doing things, Wally, dear," she explained patiently. "He's really awfully clever."

"I noticed you thought so," Walter growled. "Like the movies, did you?"

She understood then that he was jealous and gave a little laugh in which there was the merest suggestion of gratified vanity. "And you such a sweet thing and all! Why the grousing, Mr. Chief?"

"Bim, I wish you'd cut this racket. A murder's no kind of a thing for a girl like you to mix herself up in. Let it go, sweetheart. After this—well, you heard what Reynolds said yesterday and he knows pretty well all that's going on. Been out Franklin Street lately? Also she had met Mr. Carl Carey. Not, of course, that Carey made any difference. Only he was interesting. And romantic. And she always had wanted to know someone she thought romantic.

"Sweet thing," said Bim, "Let's talk about clues. Let's talk a lot about clues this morning for I've a feeling we're going to need plenty of clues before we get through."

Walter gave up with a sigh and got out his notebook and Bim made a little list as they ran through the pages.

"There's the two sets of footprints back of the Summer house," he began. "Fred Burke's been working on that, measuring the shoes of everybody around Pine Hill. The man's prints don't mean anything—they were too blurred. But the woman's were better; a narrow shoe with sharp heels. We thought they were the Baroness' at first but they turned out too wide. They measure up with Mrs. Hardy's shoes."

"Em Hardy! But she couldn't have been there."

"Probably not. Probably someone borrowed her shoes for the occasion."

"Oh! It was all planned, then. A woman . . . Someone spied on the Baroness and whoever she went to meet and then sneaked around to the other side of the Summer house and shot her."

Holding Out

"Maybe. Or maybe the woman just spied. Curiosity, you know. One of the servants, perhaps, with an urge to see how a Baroness made love. I don't feel satisfied about this; someone has been holding out on us."

"Then there's the laundry mark on the sheet. Funny about that, too. We've canvassed laundries within a radius of twenty miles of Kingcliffe and none of them know it. They seem to think it's an old mark. Of course, the sheet might have been brought from a distance."

"And we haven't found the other part of the note—the one the Baroness wrote and gave to the butler. Probably never will."

"If someone has anything to hide."

"Not a chance; we're watching. By the way, what did Mrs. Frost say about going home alone?"

Bim flushed guiltily, thinking of the evening she had spent at the movies with Carey. "I'll go up to Pine Hill right now and bring her story back with me."

"See that you come back," growled Walter.

DUBIOUS RECOMMENDATION

While in Switzerland a traveler was about to make an ascent, when he thought he might as well institute some inquiries about the guide who was to accompany him.

"Is he a thoroughly skilled climber?" he asked his hotelkeeper.

"I should say so," was the reply. "He has lost two parties of tourists down the mountainside, and each time has come off without as much as a scratch himself."

DEPENDS ON TACKLER

"When a player kicks the ball over that pole does it mean he is out?"

"That depends upon how hard his opponent hits him just before he made the goal."

Theory

A theory too often shrinks its purpose as it stops. It's truly splendid when it works, but awful when it flops.

Changed Subject

"Look here, young man," said the playwright father, "this report doesn't say very nice things about your work at school."

"Coming up in the train, dad, I was reading about the play you had produced last night, and—"

"Better have your tea, young fellow."

No More Gas In Stomach and Bowels

If you wish to be permanently relieved of gas in stomach and bowels, take Basalman's Gas Tablets, which are prepared especially for stomach gas and all the bad effects resulting from gas pressure. That empty, gnawing feeling at the pit of the stomach will disappear; that anxious, nervous feeling with heart palpitation will vanish, and you will again be able to take a deep breath without discomfort. That drowsy, sleepy feeling after dinner will be replaced by a desire for entertainment. Bloating will cease. Your limbs, arms and fingers will no longer feel cold and "go to sleep" because Basalman's Gas Tablets prevent gas from interfering with the circulation. Get the genuine in the yellow package, at any good drug store. Price $1.

Always on hand at ECONOMY DRUG CO.
